Chuck Wilson wins Christman Award

Chuck Wilson, a standout football and track star at Washington Senior High School, was the recipient of the 1974 Clarence A. Christman Award at a Lafayette Inn dinner meeting Monday night.

Recognizing Wilson as the most outstanding "Athlete-Scholar-Leader" in Fayette County, the sixth annual award honors one of the county's past sports enthusiasts — the late Clarence A. Christman, Jr. Glenn Gifford, last year's winner, presented the award to Wilson.

Wilson was selected from a field of seven candidates nominated by head coaches of the major sports at Washington Senior and Miami Trace high schools. The other nominees included Gary Cobb, Miami Trace; David Steinhauser, Miami Trace; Randy Reiber, Miami Trace; Jeff King, Miami Trace; Doug Ford, Miami Trace; and Jeff Wallace, Washington C.H.

Wilson, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Wilson, 526 Delaware St., was nominated by football coach Maurice Pfeiffer and track coach Dick Roth. He earned three varsity letters in each sport.

Accepting an appointment to the U.S. Naval Academy, Wilson finished 38th in a class of 177 with a 2.964 cumulative average. He is six feet tall and weight 185 pounds.

AS A TWO-WAY starter on the football team for three years, Wilson is the holder of nine school records. He led the South Central Ohio League in scoring for two seasons and topped all Ohio classes in scoring in 1973. He was a first team SCOL selection two years, Southeastern District Back of the Year in 1973, All-Ohio first team honoree and Associated Press Player of the Year in 1973 and an honorable mention selection to Prep All-America.

Wilson placed third in the class AA state long jump competition this past season. Serving as co-captain of this year's track squad, Wilson completed his track career holding school records in three events.

As a sophomore, Wilson participated on the Spanish scholarship team. He is a member of the Second Baptist Church and is involved with the church choir. Wilson is a senior patrol leader in the Boy Scouts, participated in the Boy Scouts' conservation program, served as a board member for Community Action and served two years as a representative for all county students in Neighborhood Youth Corps Program.

With the Junior Naval ROTC, he has helped decorate the court house with Christmas lights, participated in ceremonial parades, Christmas, Memorial and Veteran's Day parades in our community, as well as in Morrow, Chillicothe and South Solon. Epsilon Sigma Alpha selected him as

Inmate lobotomy draws protests

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP)—Prison officials are fielding protests over the lobotomy ordered for an inmate who spent more than seven years in isolation and went blind before his release after 33 years behind bars.

But Warden Ed Pogue of the Nevada State Prison said Monday the treatment given Eugene Austin, now in a convalescent home, is no longer in use, as many of the objectors believe.

Pogue said one person wrote "What kind of animal are you?" Then the warden added, "We had been concerned about Austin, too. We had been trying for a couple of years to get him released."

Austin, 51, was sentenced to life in prison in 1941 at age 18 for killing a woman during a shooting spree.

Records show he was constantly involved in fights with both inmates and prison guards and underwent a prefrontal lobotomy in 1953 in an effort to control his violence. Prison officials said the surgery was completed with Austin's acquiescence.

By the time he was released May 28, Austin had spent more time in the state prison than any other inmate. More than seven years of that time was in a darkened isolation cell.

Austin's blindness was brought on by the time spent in isolation and by injuries suffered in prison brawls, officials have said.

"He was rough. He was the strongest man I have ever seen," said Art Bernard, the warden when surgeons performed the lobotomy that left Austin subdued and docile.

Asked whether he had any reservations about the medical decision to give Austin a lobotomy, Bernard replied, "None at all. It was done in his best interests."

Pogue said he has received about eight letters and 10 phone calls from "people expressing concern as to why Austin was here so long and why he had a prefrontal lobotomy...."

He said it was unfortunate that Austin received a lobotomy, "but that was the state of things at the time. Mental hospitals and prisons were using them. This was an acceptable thing at the time it occurred."

Judge killed by bomb blast; authorities seek motive

PASCO, Wash. (AP) — Court administrator Jim Boldt says he knows of no controversial cases handled by a judge who was killed when a mailed package he was opening exploded in his office.

The blast killed Superior Court Judge James J. Lawless, 50, late Monday.

Officials here said they did not know why the judge was the target. He had served on the bench for 17 years.

Police would not say whether they suspected any connection between the blast and the bombing of a police car and a deliberately set fire in mid-April in the Prosser area 35 miles from here.

But Acting Mayor Donald Linton said, "It was probably just a fluke that it didn't happen in Prosser. It was apparently aimed at the judge and not the community."

The package had been addressed to the judge at his Prosser office. Lawless, who lived here, held court in Pasco and Prosser.

Bob Gregory, a postal official, said the package was delivered to the courthouse in Prosser Monday morning and then was taken back to Pasco by Mrs. Maxine Hancock, a court reporter.

Prosser Postmaster Frank Suhadolnik said the package was wrapped in an old paper bag and measured about three inches wide, three inches thick and six inches long.

Mrs. Hancock said she had a strange feeling about the package after she left it with the judge minutes before it exploded.

She had just returned to her office when she heard the blast. "I was sure it must have had something to do with the package," she said. "I don't know why I felt that, but I took off for his office."

Police said they were placing the district's two other judges under protection.

Lawless is survived by his widow, Beth, and five children.

8 states hold primary elections today

By The Associated Press

The primary election for nominees seeking to replace Ronald Reagan as governor and a stern campaign reform measure focused election attention today on California, one of eight states holding primaries.

In the featured contest on the longest ballot in California history, 18 Democrats and six Republicans sought their party nominations to succeed Reagan, the GOP governor who has dominated California politics the past eight years. Reagan is not seeking reelection.

Other primaries are being held in Alabama, Iowa, Mississippi, Montana, New Jersey, New Mexico and South Dakota.

In California, opinion polls say the front-runner for the GOP nomination is state Controller Houston I. Flournoy, 44, an Ivy League-educated political scientist and former college professor.

May become key figure in inquiry

Colson says he'll tell all he knows

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former White House counsel Charles W. Colson's desire to "tell everything I know" could make him a key figure in the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment inquiry.

Colson's conversations with President Nixon on subjects involved in the inquiry are among those tapes the committee has subpoenaed and Nixon has refused to provide.

He also has played a leading role in White House dealings with the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp., dairy co-ops, and in the activities of the White House plumbers. The committee begins looking into ITT matters today.

Colson pleaded guilty Monday to a single count of obstructing justice in the trial of Daniel Ellsberg, accused of leaking the Pentagon papers. Under an arrangement with special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski, Colson will not be prosecuted on three other charges in the Ellsberg case and in the Watergate cover-up.

Colson said he agreed to the arrangement so he would be free "to tell everything I know about the Watergate and Watergate-related matters."

The 42-year-old lawyer will be sentenced June 21 on a charge that he carried out a plan to "defame and destroy the public image and credibility" of Ellsberg. A felony, it carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

His arrangement with Jaworski is designed to make him available as a prosecution witness in the various trials the special prosecutor is preparing. But William Merrill, assistant special prosecutor, said Colson would be free to testify before the Judiciary Committee if he wants to.

Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., who hopes to speed up the inquiry by limiting the number of witnesses, would not comment about the possibility that Colson would be called. No decision will be made on witnesses, he said, until all documentary evidence has been presented in about three weeks.

Other committee members, however, said they hoped Colson would be called.

Earlier Monday, Robert McClory of Illinois became the first Republican on the committee to speak in favor of finding Nixon in contempt of Congress, if that would result in getting the tapes the committee has subpoenaed.

The Senate Watergate Committee also may call Colson.

His importance as a potential witness in the impeachment inquiry is underscored in a Judiciary Committee staff memorandum to members justifying a request for various taped presidential conversations.

It lists nine telephone calls and meetings between Nixon and Colson bearing on the Watergate break-in, payments to keep the convicted burglars quiet and an alleged offer of executive clemency to one of them.

In the ITT antitrust settlement, which became involved in the Senate confirmation hearings of Richard Kleindienst as attorney general, Colson urged that the nomination be withdrawn.

Nixons on cruise near capitol

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon took Mrs. Nixon and their daughter and son-in-law, Julie and David Eisenhower, for a dinner cruise on the Potomac.

The yacht, the Sequoia, reportedly cruised south of the capitol Monday night.

The presidential party returned to the White House at 8:05 p.m. EDT.

"His reason included the possibility that documents would be revealed suggesting that the President was involved in the ITT situation ..." the memorandum says.

In 1970, it says, Colson served as the White House contact for the Associated Milk Producers Inc. and received its pledge for a $2 million contribution to Nixon's re-election campaign.

The committee is investigating whether milk price support increases were approved in return for the contributions.

Nixon, dirty trick linked by Magruder

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jeb Stuart Magruder says he was told that President Nixon approved at least one campaign dirty trick in 1972—a phony write-in campaign for Sen. Edward M. Kennedy in the New Hampshire Democratic primary.

Magruder, who goes to prison today for his part in the Watergate scandal, recounts the incident in his book, "An American Life—One Man's Road to Watergate," scheduled for publication June 26.

Most of the first-person account retraces with some new detail the Watergate events spelled out in his dramatic Senate testimony last summer, but Magruder discloses a few new incidents.

Report House members got milk money

WASHINGTON (AP) — At least 16 members of the House Judiciary Committee accepted political donations ranging from $100 to $11,000 from the same three dairy farmer cooperatives the panel is investigating as part of its impeachment probe.

Two members, Democrat Charles B. Rangel of New York and Republican Thomas F. Railsback of Illinois, decided to return the money after being questioned about it by The Associated Press.

Rangel got $100 from Associated Milk Producers, Inc. last March, and sent it back Monday with a letter saying it would be improper for him to accept it.

An aide to Railsback said he would give back $500 that he received from the same group in 1972 "because he wants to be free of any conflict of interest."

The others, including committee chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., who got $4,100, said they saw no conflict.

The biggest recorded donation went to Rep. Edward Mezvinsky, a first-term Democrat from Iowa, who got $11,000.

According to public records going back to April 7, 1972, these committee members were given money by one or more of the co-ops, Associated Milk Producers, Inc., Dairymen, Inc., and Mid-America Dairymen, Inc.:

M. Caldwell Butler, R-Va., $1,500; William S. Cohen, R-Maine, $3,000; John Conyers Jr., D-Mich. $100; David Dennis, R-Ind., $500; Walter Flowers, D-Ala., $1,000; Harold V. Froehlich, R-Wis., $100; William L. Hungate, D-Mo., $2,300; Robert W. Kastenmeier, D-Wis., $2,650; Trent Lott, R-Miss., $2,500; Robert McClory, R-Ill., $500; Mezvinsky, $11,000; Wayne Owens, D-Utah, $2,600; Railsback, $500; Rangel, $100; Rodino, $4,100 and Jerome R. Waldie, D-Calif., $200.

Kastenmeier, Hungate and Flowers were among sponsors of legislation to raise the federal support price for milk in 1971. The White House has cited this legislation, sponsored eventually by 121 House members, as a key reason President Nixon overruled the Agriculture Department and raised milk price supports in March 1971.

He said the write-in was conceived by former special presidential counsel Charles W. Colson "to create confusion among the Democrats" and "sow ill will between Kennedy and (Sen. Edmund S.) Muskie," who was considered the frontrunner in the Democratic presidential race.

Magruder, who was deputy director of President Nixon's re-election campaign, said he opposed the multi-thousand-dollar plan because "it seemed like a large outlay for a dubious result."

"Then, one day in February, I was in the White House and encountered Colson just outside the President's office," Magruder wrote. "We've got to get that mailing going," he told me. "I've just come from talking to the President, and he thinks it's crucial."

Magruder said White House chief of staff H.R. Haldeman "told me that what Colson said was true, the President did want the pro-Kennedy mailing in New Hampshire."

The mailing seeking Kennedy write-in votes did go out but netted fewer than 1,000 votes. Magruder termed it "a waste of time and money."

The Senate Watergate committee investigated the incident last year but apparently was unable to trace the mailing to its source.

Magruder implicated former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell in the decision approving the break-in and bugging of Democratic headquarters in the Watergate complex and recounted the careful plans to cover up high-level involvement in the abortive scheme.

He wrote that shortly after the June 17, 1972 break-in, he played tennis with then-Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, who asked: "Jeb, what the hell is going on?"

"It was our operation," I said. "It got screwed up. We're trying to take care of it," Magruder said he replied. "Agnew frowned and looked away. 'I don't think we ought to discuss it again, in that case.'"

New Lockheed chief to push diversification

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — G. William Miller, who would take the controls at Lockheed Aircraft under a massive refinancing plan, says he forsores the nation's largest defense contractor moving into nongovernmental areas in the next decade.

Miller, 49, is board chairman at Textron Inc., a Rhode Island-based conglomerate with products ranging from zippers to missiles.

It offers to bring in $85 million in new capital in exchange for 45 per cent of the debt-ridden aerospace firm under the tentative plan announced here Monday.

"Basically, it's a simple plan. Remove the impediments—cut (Lockheed) loose to fly," said Miller, who would replace Lockheed board chairman Daniel J. Haughton this fall. Lockheed now has a balance of U.S. government, foreign government and commercial projects, but during the next decade, Miller said he would "expect to see more offshore drilling for oil and we'll be moving farther out to sea. I think we can use Lockheed's tremendous knowledge of satellites" as exploration tools, said Miller, who was graduated from the Coast Guard academy in 1945 with a marine engineering degree.

Problems with Lockheed's TriStar jumbo jets have to be solved first, though.

About 300 of the L1011 jetliners must be sold before the company can break even. Orders to date total 202 and 67 of them are tentative, company officials say.

But Miller is optimistic. Textron, which Miller has headed since 1960, has 30 divisions while Lockheed has only five. "Lockheed isn't really all that big and complicated," he said. "We're talking about a company with $2.7 billion in sales. Compare that to General Motors with $30 billion in sales."

Textron has total assets of $1.3 billion and showed a profit of $100.5 million after taxes last year.

It is the largest producer of helicopters—Bell—in the world, and Miller said its experience in the technological and aerospace field makes it a good choice for the plan.

Lockheed, which has been battling for its corporate life for three years, has been propped up with government loans and its debt totals more than $850 million.

Agnew to pay $1,100 settlement on $175,000 bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Washington Post reported today that Spiro T. Agnew has agreed to pay the government $1,100 in settlement for $175,000 in improvements made to his Kenwood, Md., home while he was vice president.

The newspaper said Agnew and General Services Administrator Arthur W. Sampson signed an agreement April 12 under which the former vice president pledged to pay $700 for air-conditioning and $400 for carpeting in the home.

Agnew bought the suburban home early last year for $190,000. He recently sold it for a reported, $300,000.

Ohio assemblymen face heavy floor agendas today

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Both houses of the Ohio Legislature faced heavy floor agendas today as leaders and committees sought to decide if there will be a supplemental appropriations bill.

The House scheduled floor sessions at 11 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. while the Senate, which met Monday in an unusual night floor session, planned to convene at 1:30 p.m.

House members faced a calendar of 13 bills, including a pair designed to increase the benefits of retired public employees. Senators planned to deal with legislation aimed at increasing the taxing powers of regional transit authorities.

Chairman Max H. Dennis, R-10 Wilmington, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said he would place supplemental spending proposals into a subcommittee to see if differences can be worked out between

Hog-corn ratio poor for farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government indicator called the hog-corn ratio slipped last month to the lowest level 18 years, a sign that pork producers continue to be in financial trouble because of high feed prices and relatively low returns for market animals.

The May 15 ratio was 10.7, down from 12.7 in April and 21.9 a year earlier. That is the number of bushels of corn approximately equal in value to 100 pounds of liveweight hog sold by farmers.

According to Agriculture Department records, the May indicator was the lowest since it sank to 10.7 in July 1956. Further, it was the lowest ratio for May since 1948.

Although the squeeze of feed prices and market value of hogs is not news to producers caught in it, the figure itself explains much of the reason why hog output has not increased the past year as government experts once expected.

The May price report, released last Friday, showed hog prices nationally averaged $26.30 per 100 pounds, down from $30.60 in April. A year earlier in May 1973 $35.30 per hundredweight.

But corn sold at the farm a year ago for $1.61 per bushel which represented then a pickup in price from a few months earlier when the 1972 crop was being harvested. Last month, according to USDA, farmers nationally were able to sell corn for $2.45 per bushel.

Department experts, although recognizing the current crunch on hog producers, believe their market prices will improve this summer and next fall.

Law enforcement officers probe various offenses

A burglary of a Palmer Road man's residence netted thieves all kinds of miscellaneous merchandise, counterfeit money was passed in Fayette County and the larceny of a mailbox occurred Friday night, the Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported. City Police are investigating a break-in at Washington Junior High School, an incident of vandalism at Cor-Tec Inc., a bad check passed at Krogers and a dog bite.

Sometime between Saturday and Monday, the Roy Carr residence, Palmer Road, was burglarized.

The Carr household was entered through an unlocked door and an antique wash stand was removed. Then locks on two out buildings were pried open and two more wash stands, a library table, a model-T engine and transmission, a car battery and a radiator were taken.

The auto parts were taken from a 1950 Plymouth owned by Dick and David Carr.

Sheriff's deputies are investigating the theft.

Two counterfeit 20-dollar bills were passed at the Fayette County Bank in Jeffersonville, at 1 p.m. Thursday.

Fayette County Sheriff Don Thompson, reported one of the bills is believed to have been originally passed in the U.S. 35 and I-71 business district.

LEAA chief on way out, reports say

WASHINGTON (AP) — Donald E. Santarelli, a Nixon administration trooper who broke ranks, reportedly is on his way out but nobody wants to talk about it.

Congressional sources said Monday that Santarelli has resigned as head of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, the Justice Department agency that passes out nearly $900 million a year to state and local governments to fight crime.

Santarelli refused to talk to reporters. His aides first said "no comment" to the report, but later referred questions to the White House. The White House and Justice Department had no comment.

Last week, Santarelli, a glib and brainy 36-year-old lawyer, told an Associated Press reporter that the Watergate scandal has made the government "a nastier place to be these days."

He said then that he wanted to leave government service soon, but meantime he would "very assiduously avoid" mentioning President Nixon's name in public.

Stock list posts gain

NEW YORK (AP) — Visions of declining interest rates inspired another broad advance in the stock market today.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 8.14 at $29.40 on top of a 19.09-point surge Monday. Gainers swamped losers by 4-to-1 in active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said the strong rally was touched off by prime-rate cuts posted Monday by banks in Chicago and St. Louis. They added, however, that it appeared the rally would need further signs of a downturn in money rates to continue much longer.

Tandy Corp. was the NYSE's most-active stock, down 3/4 at 23 1/4. A 134,400-share block of the issue changed hands at 23.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index climbed .91 to 82.95.

The Amex' most heavily traded issue was Syntex, down 1/4 at 46.

The Big Board's composite index of some 1,500 common stocks was .48 higher at 4u.29.

More warm, sunny weather has been forecast for the Buckeye State.

A high pressure area that has dominated the state's weather since the weekend shows no immediate sign of leaving, weathermen said today.

Sunny skies and warm, humid weather have been forecast over the state through Saturday with only a slight chance of rain.

Highs in the 80s and lows in the 60s have been forecast for the period.

Highs Monday ranged from 70 at Burke Lakefront Airport in downtown Cleveland to 84 in the Cincinnati area. Lows at dawn today were in the 50s.

Fair, warm and humid Thursday through Saturday. Highs in the 80s. Lows in the 60s.

Man questioned in knife slaying

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A 55-year-old west end man was held for questioning Monday night after an elderly lady was discovered dead with a butcher knife in her back.

Police said Miss Mattie Broadus, 73, was found early Monday morning in the bedroom of her apartment. Her hands were tied behind her back with an appliance cord.

Lt. Dan Cash, homicide squad commander, said the victim had apparently been dead for several days.

President plans Middle East trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon will tour five Middle East countries June 12-18 "to consolidate what has been achieved on the road to peace," the White House said today.

Simultaneous announcement were made by the White House and each of the five Middle East governments involved in Nixon's plans for the most extensive tour of the region ever undertaken by a U.S. president.

A White House spokesman said Nixon would depart Monday morning for Salzburg, Austria, where he will spend two nights before heading to the Middle East.

Nixon's Middle East itinerary: June 12-14, Egypt; June 14-15, Saudi Arabia; June 15-16, Syria; June 16-17, Israel; and June 17-18, Jordan.

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren, who made the White House announcement, said the President will be accompanied by Mrs. Nixon and by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, whose successful negotiation of an Israeli-Syria disengagement agreement last week cleared the way for the journey.

Administration sources said the trip is intended also to underscore administration belief that Nixon remains a world leader despite impeachment moves at home.

Liberian chief receives award

NEW YORK (AP) — Liberia's President William R. Tolbert Jr. has been selected for the 1974 "Family of Man" award by New York City's churches and business leaders.

The selection of Tolbert, a descendant of former American slaves, represents a change in the tradition of honoring only top American figures.

Not since Franklin D. Roosevelt's journeys to Cairo in 1943 and 1945 has an American president visited the region.

Kissinger, secretary of state as well as Nixon's national security adviser, paved the way for the trip when he negotiated a Syrian-Israeli disengagement agreement last week. He had negotiated a similar Israeli-Egyptian disengagement after a ceasefire in the October war.

A team of experts in such fields as communications and security already has arrived in the Middle East to make advance arrangements.

According to Cairo reports, a special meeting with Egyptian officials was arranged to discuss presidential security.

Cairo sources also said the Nile Hilton hotel was alerted to reserve eight floors, or some 320 rooms, for a three-day Nixon visit next week.

The trip timetable would give the President several days of rest in the United States before he departs for a week of summit talks in the Soviet Union beginning June 27.

Health department offers TB testing

A food handler's permit is no longer required for those persons employed in the food industry, Dr. William Covert, the county health commissioner announced. There are three exceptions, however — school, nursing home and hospital personnel.

The previous almost blanket requirement has been relaxed at the direction of the Ohio Department of Health and the Ohio Health Council, Dr. Covert explained, adding that "There also are a few food industries and restaurants, whose policy or interstate distribution of food requires a food handlers permit."

For those persons whose employer requests a food handler's permit, tuberculin skin tests will be given at the Fayette County Health Department on the first Friday (8:30 until 11:30 a.m.) of each month. Arrangements also can be made by employers for industry-wide skin testing, Dr. Covert said.

For those who have a positive reaction to the tuberculin skin test, a new policy has been instituted by the county Health Department on recommendation of the Ohio Health Department and Ohio Public Health Council. The mobile unit is no longer available for the annual chest X-rays as in the past. Now, Dr. Covert declared, the recommendation for positive tuberculin test reactors is to take the medication Isoniazid (INH) for one year. This can be supplied at no cost by the county Health Department on order of the person's private physician, Dr. Covert explained. He said letters will be mailed in the near future to all positive reactors to the skin test known to the Health Department to explain the new policy.

After many years of use as a prophylactic drug against tuberculosis, Isoniazid (INH), has been found to greatly lessen the possibility of future breakdown into active tuberculosis in those positive reactors, Dr. Covert pointed out.

Anyone wanting a tuberculin skin test for their own personal use may go to the Health Department the first Friday morning of each month, or call and make other arrangements.

Crime control funds awarded

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— State and federal crime control funds totaling $631,000 have been awarded Ohio law enforcement agencies, Gov. John Gilligan announced Monday.

The Stark County Council of Governments received the largest grant, $161,000 for an adult community treatment center.

Other major grants: $90,000 to the Ohio Youth Commission to improve records processing; $21,976 to the Ohio Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation for implementing statutes concerning the mentally ill offender, and $20,000 to the state Department of Rehabilitation and Correction to fund the planning of facilities and programs.

16 compete in tractor rodeo

Sixteen contestants competed in the 1974 4-H Tractor Rodeo held Sunday at the Fayette County Fairgrounds. The winner of the event was David Duff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Suff, Washington-Waterloo Rd., who was assessed only 900 penalty points.

Runner-up honors went to Dick Davis, Matthews Road, with a score of 1085 points. Third and fourth places went to Doug Welsh, Ohio 38-N, and Bret Taylor, 5832 Prairie Road, with scores of 1115 and 1200, respectively.

The rodeo tested the skills of 4-H Tractor Club members in tractor operation, safety and maintenance.

Scoring was done in four parts on a penalty point basis. First, each contestant took a written exam testing his knowledge of tractor safety and mechanics. Second, the contestants tested their skills in moving a 2-wheel trailer through an obstacle course, and third, the boys tackled the 4-wheel trailer backing event. In the final event, each contestant performed a troubleshooting exercise for maintenance problems.

The 2-wheel and 4-wheel events were scored on time to complete the test, skill in safe operation, and ability to stay within the bounds of the course. A maximum time of six minutes was allowed for each event.

Other 4-H'ers participating in the Tractor Rodeo were Chris Schlichter, Kevin Cory, Rick Welsh, Kelley Smith, J. T. Perrill, Mark Johnson, Mike Miller, Duane Matthews, Bart Taylor, Rand Beekman, Jay Fannin and Jeff Schlichter. 4-H Tractor Club Advisors Joe Geelsing, John Hiser, Lowell Woods and Jack Sommers, County 4-H Agent set up the course and scored the events.

Tractors and equipment were provided by Case Power & Equipment and Jeffersonville Farm Service.

Awards for the winners were provided by Case Power & Equipment Co., Krieger Equipment Inc., and Lowell Woods.

From

WILLIAM H. HARSHA
Representative To Congress
6th District, Ohio

There is, and will continue to be a serious fertilizer shortage in this nation. And nobody has to convince anybody else that there is a great deal of difficulty and high interest rates involved in obtaining a loan in this country today.

Apparently that doesn't seem to bother the federal government too much. The Department of Agriculture is admittedly unable to help the farmers who are facing financial ruin because either they can't get enough fertilizer for their crops or when they can buy it, the prices are exorbitant. Neither is there any end in sight for the plight of American borrowers who will have to go through a lot of hand wringing and pay high interest rates for their loans for business, housing or whatever. But the Russians won't, however, when they extend their palms for U.S. money.

They were just given the clearance from the Export-Import Bank—a government gunded agency, mind you—for a $180 million low interest loan to build, of all things, a multi million dollar fertilizer complex in the Soviet Union. This is the largest, and as far as I am concerned, the most outrageous American loan of its type to the Soviets in our history.

Right now, U.S. banks are loaning money to their best American commercial customers at a whopping 11.5 percent or more. That is almost twice as much as the Russians will be paying. The six percent interest charged to them is a figure American borrowers haven't seen in a long time.

Nor will the Russians have to worry about paying back any of the millions of dollars from commercial banks and the Eximbank for five years. Besides the $180 million from the Eximbank, the Russians are also borrowing the same amount from U.S. commercial banks and are only putting $40 million down of their own money for the $400 million project. Then, the Russians will have twelve years to make payments in which the commercial banks, of course, are to be repaid first and the taxpayers last. No American borrower would be allowed to delay his payments five months, let alone five years, nor would Uncle Sam give any such preferential treatment to any taxpayer who wanted to postpone paying his yearly assessment.

There is another more serious factor to be considered which could have a critical impact on our agriculture industry. Today, the U.S. produces only 40 per cent of its fertilizer needs. With the point sorely driven home about the lack of American independence in energy resources during the recent oil embargo (which the Russians supported), it seems very risky to pump millions of dollars into such a questionable ally's efforts to become a major world supplier of fertilizer. There is certainly no assurance Americans will get any preferential treatment when we import Russian fertilizer when the product is available five years hence. And who is going to make the Russians pay the loan if they suddenly decide they don't have to? Nothing in the history of the U.S.S.R. suggests that they might do otherwise.

Once again, it appears the American taxpayer has staked another country's raid on the U.S. Treasury in what is becoming a "checkbook detente". I oppose this as vigorously as I have opposed every other form of foreign aid. We needed that fertilizer plant here in the United States. We needed that money here at home for our own problems. Instead, we just bought more of them from the Soviet Union. The greatest single cause of inflation is government spending and unless the Congress controls some of this irresponsible spending, we never will resolve the serious problem of inflation.

Church hosts organ recital

Grace United Methodist Church will host an organ recital at 8 p.m. Saturday.

Raymond H. Chenault, concert organist, will present a program of church and classical music to which the public is cordially invited.

Chenault will graduate in August with a Master's degree in organ performance from the College Conservatory of Music of the University of Cincinnati. He has presented concerts throughout the eastern United States and in Belgium.

His most recent recital was at Grace Cathedral, San Francisco, Calif., and his is scheduled for recitals in Atlanta, Ga., Washington D.C., and Richmond, Va., in the near future.

Bottle on the beach

Figure the chances that a message in a bottle tossed into the sea by a young American seaman would be picked up on the beach by the President of the United States. A million to one? A hundred million to one? The fact that it did happen is fascinating enough no matter what the odds were.

Seaman Larry Metivier, aboard the USS Guam, wrote the name and address of his grandparents and said to the unknown someone who would find his bottle: "Tell them you found this message from their grandson." Well, the unknown someone did just that: Mr. Nixon phoned the grandparents and read the message. The odds on its happening that way? We wouldn't even venture a guess.

WASHINGTON CALLING . . . by Marquis Childs

Is this justice?

WASHINGTON — As has been said in space, before the chances are better than that President Nixon and his principal confederates will get off free.

By an unprecedented defiance of the law subjecting the system of justice to an intolerable strain, the White House will go free in the courts and the President may escape the ultimate penalty of impeachment.

WHAT EMERGES looks very much like a mutual protective society. The principals under indictment in the Watergate break-in are calling for White House tapes essential for their defense. The tapes are refused. Since the relevant evidence is not available, the charges against them must be dismissed. Judge Gerhardt Gesell put it in forthright language when he demanded to know whether the President was aware that he was covering the case by refusing to hand over the evidence.

The same thing will happen when the seven principals indicted on March 1 come to trial. The tapes will be withheld by the President. The case will be dismissed and Mitchell, Ehrlichman, Haldeman & Co. will go free.

They will have performed their part of the bargain by concealing what they know about the President's complicity in the Watergate and related scandals. It is impossible to exaggerate the damage this will do to the system of justice and law. However much the prosecution about tapes, transcripts and the dates of conversations, with the process interminably drawn out, the truth will not be lost. It will be written in ever-increasing cynicism and distrust of the system and contempt for the Nixon rhetoric of law and order.

The little people, the marginal people, the Jeb Magruder, the Dwight Chapin, the Egil Kroghs, go to jail. The big fish swim out of the net through the holes their clever lawyers find for their escape.

This was the reaction of cynicism and disillusion when former Vice President Spiro Agnew was let off with a legal rap on the wrist with a memorandum before the court listing 38 crimes of bribery and corruption.

Consider whether just this same outcome may result if and when the President stands on trial before the bar of the Senate. His enormously clever and resourceful lawyer James St. Clair can argue that while a bill of impeachment was voted by the House of Representatives it was not unwritten by the relevant evidence.

As in the courts, the House Judiciary Committee will have been refused the tapes sought to establish guilt or innocence.

Senators wanting to find a reason to vote for Nixon's acquittal will be able to fasten on this legalism justifying confidentiality, executive privilege and the rest of the rigamarole of concealment.

SUCH A defense by a President defying every canon of the law will be even more a farce than, as Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski suggested, is the White House stonewalling in the courts. But it requires only 34 plus one to acquit and, fantastic as it seems at this moment, it may be the escape hatch.

In all this is a terrible historic irony. It comes against the background of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's valiant efforts to bring peace to the Middle East. That tireless effort promises to succeed.

The reward for President Nixon will be a tour of Middle East capitals, meaning a television spectacular at the time when the test in the courts occurs. The distracting effect hardly needs to be underscored.

It comes when the detente with the Soviet Union and the possibility of a further breakthrough in curbing the nuclear arms race is at a critical point. Except for die-hard cold war warriors and those with a political axe to grind, no one can want this to fail. These are some of the enormous credits of the Nixon-Kissinger foreign policy. But can they be built on a structure in such fearful disarray and disorder? We shall know in the weeks ahead whether the foreign policy initiatives can have what will be in effect an independent life of their own.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

ARIES

(March 21 to April 20)

Follow up a potentially good tip you once brushed aside — but not impulsively or unprepared. For best results, you MUST have a definite plan.

TAURUS

(April 21 to May 21)

You may be attracted to an individual who seems aloof, indifferent. Making a gesture of friendship could change the situation considerably.

GEMINI

(May 22 to June 21)

Let others "be themselves." The Gemini is usually a most tolerant individual, never trying to dominate others, but such inclinations prevail now.

CANCER

(June 22 to July 23)

A brand new financial start indicated — accompanied by high hopes, which CAN be realized. You MUST take the initiative, however — and confidently.

LEO

(July 24 to Aug. 23)

You may be concerned about the "whys and wherefores" of certain events. Insight IS available, but you'll need the help of a close associate to attain it.

VIRGO

(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Creative interests stimulated. Your ideas are not only inspirational but highly feasible. Also favored; romance and family concerns.

LIBRA

(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Some requests may annoy, but think them over carefully. Compliance COULD prove profitable in the long run — and bring you satisfaction as well.

SCORPIO

(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

By interpreting situations arbitrarily, you may miss intended meanings. Do not hesitate to call in clever associates for better understanding. Day needs collaboration, teamwork.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Your competition will be keen now, but the challenge should prove stimulating. A good chance to display your ingenuity and know-how.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Day calls for your steadiest heart and hand. Don't try to swim against the tide and don't try to force issues.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

A day which you can mold pretty much to your liking. Take a firm and knowing hand early and plan your schedule smartly. Make no snap decisions, however.

PISCES

(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Self-reliance should be your keyword now. Don't let others do your thinking for you. Neither let anyone sway you from a worthwhile course.

YOU BORN TODAY are extremely imaginative and, in all your undertakings, combine the artistic with the practical. Your interests in life are almost limitless, but it is in your absorption with people that you find your greatest stimulation. Try to cultivate this trait since you are also inclined to be too introspective at times and outside contacts "take you out of yourself." Your versatility is outstanding and you could run a business or work project shrewdly while simultaneously pursuing an avocation such as writing, drawing or music. You are ready to travel on short notice and will labor tirelessly if the project in which you are engaged interests you. If not interested, you tend to scatter energies with resultant tensions and anxieties. There is no set boundary for the Gemini. He broadens his horizons every day of his life.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

With your permission, I would like to discuss — very briefly and quite generally — the subject of taxes.

The average American in the year 1974 will have to work two hours and 38 minutes of every eight-hour work day to pay the taxes imposed on him by the federal, state and local governments.

Now, we all realize it takes much money to operate the various levels of local government. I think we also realize (if not now, we will in the near future) that the cost of government has escalated beyond all reason and threatens to collapse our entire system. This is primarily due to two causes: (a) astronomical increase in so-called government services, many of which we'd be better off without, and (b) attendant with this, the astronomical increase in governmental bureaus and bureaucrats, a great many of whom are purely parasitic in nature.

In Ohio alone last year, $19,670,700,000 in taxes were collected by federal, state and local governments. This amount to $1,850 for every man, woman and child in Ohio. To get an idea of the enormity of the figure — if one were to count $100 bills at the rate of one per second, it would take 26 years and three months to count one year's "take" if one worked eight hours a day and five days a week. No vacations. No one would want to enter upon such a project, because no sooner would you get the 1973 taxes counted than you would have had a 25-year backlog accumulated. Most frustrating.

Of the total taxes paid by Ohioans in 1973, about 72 per cent went to the federal government, approximately 15 per cent to the state and a little less than 13 per cent to local government.

From the standpoint of the type of tax levied on us by the state, the sales and use tax yields by far the most — almost twice as much as the gasoline tax, with the personal income tax ($373.5 million) running a close third.

The question has been asked: "Does education receive all the state income tax collections"? The answer is "no." These taxes go into the state's general revenue fund from which the legislature makes budgetary appropriations for education and other governmental services. Education, however, does receive the major portion of the state general revenue appropriations.

Approximately 70 per cent of the operating costs of Ohio public schools can be attributed to salaries and wages for services. Over the last three years, these costs have risen 22.4 per cent even though enrollments decreased 52,649 pupils or 2.2 per cent.

It should be noted, however, that property taxes continue to be the mainstay of not only schools but local government as well. During 1973, elementary and secondary education received over 73 per cent of the total property taxes collected in Ohio. In 1963, the public schools received 66 per cent of the total property tax collections.

Another question: "Has the imposition of the new state income tax, which permitted marked increase in state aid to public schools, reduced the need for additional property tax levies for schools?" The answer, "only temporarily." In 1972 and 1973, the number of tax issues placed before the voters did decline somewhat. However, judging from the number of new school tax levies submitted at the 1974 May primary, this trend appears to be ending.

Question: "Will property taxes continue to increase in the future?" The answer is "yes." There is a strong possibility the increase could be substantial. At the local level, this would almost entirely be due to the sexennial reappraisal of real property, which in Fayette County will be completed in 1976. There are certain cases pending before the Ohio Supreme Court and certain bills pending in the Legislature, which could result in prohibiting the auditor from scaling down voted millage in the same ratio as the increase in real property evaluation.

We, the taxpayers, stand a good chance of getting shorn again.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Granddaughter needs grandma's help—now

DEAR ABBY: My 16-year-old granddaughter is pregnant. The boy is a high school kid with no way of supporting himself, let alone a wife and child, so marriage is out of the question. His folks have thrown him out, and a neighbor has taken him in. My son and daughter-in-law are going to see their daughter through this, and they're keeping the baby.

My problem: How should a 75-year-old grandmother act? Should I act like nothing out of the ordinary has happened, and accept the baby as a legitimate great-grandchild? Or should I show my contempt and disgust and turn away? I guess I was born 75 years too soon because I don't seem able to accept this situation.

So far, I've managed to keep my mouth shut, but I'll have to take a stand soon. I've always had a good relationship with my son and his wife and don't want to spoil it now.

Please help me set my thinking straight.

GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: If your family ever needed your compassion and understanding it's now! You can accept the new baby without condoning the unfortunate circumstances. The last thing your granddaughter needs now is a "show of contempt and disgust." (She's suffered enough.)

DEAR ABBY: I'll bet you've never run into a problem like mine: I am being married in a formal church wedding. My fiancé and I have known each other for two years, and the only name I've ever known him by is "Beaver." His parents have called him "Beaver" ever since they brought him home from the hospital, and everyone has called him "Beaver" ever since.

His real name is Steven, but hardly anyone knows it. When we say our marriage vows, it will seem so unnatural for me to say: "I, Mona, take thee, Steven," because I've never in my life called him Steven. But I'm afraid it would sound funny if I were to say: "I, Mona, take thee, Beaver!" So, what do you advise?

MONA

DEAR MONA: Say: "I, Mona, take thee, Steven." Nicknames are a nono in a traditional marriage ceremony.

DEAR ABBY: I don't want to brag, but I would be very good-looking if it weren't for the bags under my eyes. I'm only 27, and I've had these miserable pouches since I was in high school, but they've gotten much more noticeable in the last few years.

I work in a large office and I'm constantly being accused of having been up all night or hung over because I always look so dissipated.

Abby, I get plenty of sleep and I am no big drinker. I'm too young for a face-lift. Can you help me?

BAGGY

DEAR BAGGY: My consultants advise me that the condition you describe is called "Blepharochalasis." It's fairly common, and tends to run in families. (Some children have it.) It's not necessary to have a complete face-lift to get rid of the bags.

JUVENILE COURT

Two Washington C.H. girls, aged 13 and 16, were adjudged delinquent children by Juvenile Court Judge Rollo Marchant after they admitted shoplifting at Seaway. The 13-year-old admitted taking a $7 pair of shoes; the 16-year-old an $8.50 skirt and blouse. Both were placed on probation with Marshall Boggs.

DIVORCE ACTION FILED

Debra J. Stewart, Milledgeville, has filed in Common Pleas Court for divorce from Robert R. Stewart, Copperas, Tex., on grounds of neglect and cruelty. The parties were married here July 13, 1968 and have one child the petition states. The plaintiff is seeking alimony, custody and support.

CIVIL SUIT FILED

A half-million dollar law suit has been filed by Dennis and Elizabeth Daniels, Rt. 1, Jeffersonville, in Common Pleas Court against Knisley Pontiac, 1159 Columbus Ave., and the General Motors Corporation, Cleveland.

According to the plaintiffs claim, the right rear wheel of a car which they purchased from Knisley Pontiac came loose while Mr. Daniels was driving near Jeffersonville in the spring of 1972. The loose wheel, he claims, caused him to have an accident, doing $2,770.40 damage to the vehicle.

Since that time the plaintiff alleges to have suffered great damages due to the accident, physical injury, hospital bills, and loss of services. The plaintiffs seek $500,000 in addition to the damage to the vehicle, bringing the total to $502,770.40.

DIVORCE ACTIONS DISMISSED

The divorce action filed by Betty J. Campbell, 324 E. Paint St., against Donald J. Campbell, Ohio 41-S, has been dismissed at the request of the plaintiff.

The divorce action filed by Dorothy M. Hamilton, 423 Campbell St., against Lawrence E. Hamilton, Fairport, Ky., was dismissed by the court for lack of prosecution.

CIVIL SUIT DISMISSED

A foreclosure action filed by Fulton and Goss Inc., Cleveland, against Meredith G. Downard, 710 E. Paint St., has been dismissed without prejudice.

Fred Astaire marks 60-year career

By BOB THOMAS

Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP)—“The main thing I want to do is make good. The only way I can be satisfied is if I’m not letting anyone down — either the audience, or my fellow performers, or myself.”

The words may sound like those of a young star of a new television series, but they came from Fred Astaire, who is marking his 60th year in show business at the age of 75. He is back at work, not dancing this time out, but conveying the Astaire grace to the role of a con man in the all-star “The Towering Inferno.”

The eyes have a slight glint, and the face is more sharply angled, but Astaire remains impeccably slim and thoroughly ageless.

Even though he wasn’t working, he came to 20th Century Fox studio for an interview and to witness the first scene between Paul Newman and Steve McQueen. Astaire was eager to watch

Air crash case nixed

WASHINGTON (AP)—A dispute between Trans World Airlines and Delta Air Lines, stemming from a 1967 accident at Greater Cincinnati Airport, was denied a review Monday by the U.S. Supreme Court.

The high court’s refusal let stand a decision by the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in favor of Delta’s indemnity claim against TWA.

George W. Rosenthal, a passenger on the TWA plane, sparked the indemnity claim through damage actions. Rosenthal was injured and his wife killed in the mishap.

Delta settled with Rosenthal after a jury awarded him damages on the basis that Delta’s negligence led to the accident.

The mishap occurred when the TWA plane aborted a takeoff after sighting the Delta plane mired in mud near the runway.

The appeals court found contributory negligence by the TWA crew.

More automobiles are assembled in Kansas City than in any American city except Detroit.

McQueen’s prank of wearing three-inch platform shoes so he would tower over Newman.

“I don’t call myself an actor,” said Astaire with his customary modesty, “but I’ve had some practice at it. I did a few things as a kid; if you’d read my autobiography, you’d know that I played Roxanne to my sister Adele’s Cyrano de Bergerac.”

He recalled some of his non-musicals: “Notorious Landlady,” “On The Beach,” “Midas Run” plus his television work in “It Takes a Thief,” “The Over the Hill Gang” and his Alcoa series — “I took it so I could get training in straight roles.”

Will he dance again? “Not in a full-scale musical film nor the kind of TV special that used to win him a cartload of Emmies.

“That’s not for Mr. 75-year-old Astaire,” he said emphatically. “I did the last special when I was 70 or so, and I had to run a four-minute mile. It’s a helluva strenuous life, the way I do a show. I mean you beat the floor for eight weeks in rehearsal, then you tape it. That’s not for this fellow, not any more.”

Ohio perspective

Egg industry bill progresses

By ROBERT E. MILLER

Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A little heralded bill to protect and to maintain Ohio’s $400 million-a-year egg industry is making its way quietly through the General Assembly.

The measure seeks to exempt machinery and other tangible items used in the handling and packaging of eggs from the state sales tax.

Sponsors claim this could be a life or death matter for poultrymen in Ohio’s small and middle-sized towns.

The bill passed the House and went to the Senate in mid-May.

Rep. Frederick H. Deering, D-84 Monroeville, is the bill’s main sponsor. He introduced the proposal after years of controversy in the courts over whether the industry should pay the tax. It hasn’t until now.

Deering said he decided to offer the bill after a recent decision by the Ohio Supreme Court holding that the egg processors must pay the tax just like manufacturers.

Deering offers impressive statistics to show the importance of Ohio’s egg industry. Sales alone, he said, total about $150 million a year.

Processors, he said, have an annual payroll of about $7 million and with packaging, transportation and other related activities the impact on the state’s economy is about $400 million a year.

Deering said 92 per cent of the Ohio egg industry is situated within 28 miles of the boundaries of neighboring states, which do not impose sales taxes on their industries.

The main purpose of the bill, Deering said, is to grant egg processors in Ohio the same retail sales tax exemption that is granted to their out-of-state competitors.

Veteran Rep. Fred B. Hadley, R-79 Bryan, said the bill is of “vital importance” to the Ohio processors “most of whom operate their businesses in small towns where they are a very important part of their economies.”

In his own corner of northwest Ohio, Hadley mentioned West Unity, Wauseon and Napoleon as among communities with sizeable egg processing industries.

Bonds forfeited in Muny Court

Two men from Mount Sterling and another from Columbus were scheduled to appear in Municipal Court Monday on charges of driving a motor vehicle in parts of the Deer Creek Wildlife Area where such vehicles are prohibited.

Each forfeited $25 bond when his failed to appear.

The defendants were Curtis Harmon and Noah H. Lee, of Mount Sterling, and Thomas N. Piper, Columbus.

All three were cited by Charles Cooper, state game protector.

The longest hunger strike recorded was one of 94 days by nine inmates of Cork Prison, Ireland, from Aug 11 to Nov. 12, 1920.

Librarians battle anti-obscenity bill

By TERESA C. PITTS

Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Librarians would be subject to harassment and possible criminal charges under a proposed anti-obscenity bill before Ohio lawmakers, the head of their professional organization says.

The bill provides no protection for librarians or library clerks who dispense books which may or may not be considered obscene, said A. Chapman Parsons, executive director of the Ohio Libraries Association.

Parsons said he has testified against the measure, which is in the House Rules Committee awaiting assignment to the floor for a vote.

“We asked for an exemption for library personnel,” he said. “That’s the only way to protect library clerks from harassment and prosecution.

“As it now stands, the bill permits persons to be hauled in and mugged before any determination is made whether the material is obscene or not,” he added.

To his knowledge, no librarian ever has been arrested in Ohio for distributing pornography, he admitted.

“But that doesn’t stop the harassment, the threats or the innuendos in local communities,” he said.

The bill under consideration would allow each community to set up standards of obscenity, and would allow local prosecution of cases on that basis.

Parsons said such a provision would lead to massive litigation and could throw libraries into chaos.

“Such a clause only creates greater uncertainty for libraries,” he said. “Some libraries, such as Cuyahoga County, deal with 52 different municipalities. Such a bill would mean they’d have to dispense questionable books based on 52 different sets of guidelines.”

Furthermore, Parsons said, any obscenity bill passed by the legislature should have a provision requiring prior civil court determination of obscenity before criminal charges are filed.

“We recommended such an amendment but it was not accepted,” he said.

If libraries had their way, there wouldn’t be any obscenity bill at all, Parsons said.

“You might be able to legislate obscenity for minors, but not for adults,” he said.

Jeffersonville alumni banquet

JEFFERSONVILLE — The Jeffersonville Alumni Association annual banquet will be held at 6:30 p.m. Saturday at Jeffersonville School.

Guest speaker for the evening will be Common Pleas Court Judge Evelyn W. Coffman.

The banquet will mark the 50th anniversary for graduates of 1924 and the 25th anniversary for graduates of 1949.

Reservations should be made in advance. They are being taken by Mrs. Ray Bentley, who can be reached at 426-6239.

Cost is $2.25 per plate, and many members will want to bring their $1 to cover annual dues.

“Summer Rates” may mean bigger electric bills for you.

DP&L customers should be aware that electric rates now in effect provide for higher charges in the summer months if usage is above specified levels. This is to recover the additional cost of generating electricity during the summer, including the use of less-efficient generating units needed to meet peak hot weather demands.

Lower rates are in effect in winter when generators can be operated most efficiently.

Summer rates apply to bills issued June through October. During this period, residential customers who use more than 200 kilowatt hours per month pay more for a given amount of electricity than they do during the remaining seven months of the year.

MONTHLY USAGE	ADDITIONAL IN SUMMER
200 kwh	0
400 kwh	+ $1.40
600 kwh	+ $2.80
1000 kwh	+ $5.85
1500 kwh	+ $9.85

High coal prices hurt, too.

Another factor affecting the size of your electric bill is the rapidly increasing price of coal. Coal is a big item in the cost of supplying electricity. DP&L’s rates, like those of most electric companies, provide for any increase, or decrease, in the cost of fuel to be passed on to customers. At this time, “fuel cost adjustment”—your share of the increased cost of coal—means a sizeable addition to your bill.

We will continue to supply the electricity you need at the lowest price consistent with quality service. We hope you will understand why electric bills are bigger at this time.

French have a way with cheese

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Winston Churchill is said to have muttered during one of France's political upheavals that "it must be difficult to agree on a government in a nation that makes more than 300 kinds of cheese."

Be that as it may, the French agreed long ago on one thing; the art of making good cheese.

I have never seen anywhere the total number of cheeses the French are supposed to make, but I'm told there are more than 100 varieties available in cheese shops and specialty stores in the United States alone, from soft-ripened Brie to sturdy Pont l'Eveque.

Centuries ago, some of France's monasteries made a name for themselves as cheese makers. About 100 years back, the Trappist monks, for instance, experimented with bacteria and came up with a creamy creation known as Port du Salut, the name of the region where their abbey was located.

There are far older French cheeses, such as Gruyere, with its delicate, slightly nutty flavor, which was first made in 1288.

Quiche was originally made from bread dough like the Italian pizza, but later it was replaced by pastry. And like pizza today, there is a wide range of Quiche fillings, from the traditional bacon, cream and eggs to calorie-cramped desserts filled with rich custards laced with cognac and topped with whipped cream and fruits.

Here is a slightly different version of the cheese and onion quiche, with ham substituted for bacon.

1 package standard pie crust mix
1 egg slightly beaten
4 oz. Port du Salut shredded
1 tablespoon chopped onion
1/2 cup diced, smoked, cooked ham
3 egg yolks
1 additional whole egg
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon Dijon mustard
Dash cayenne pepper
1 1/4 cups scalded light cream

Prepare pie crust mix according to package directions, substituting 1 whole egg and enough water for amount of liquid specified. Use pastry to line bottom and sides of ungreased 9-inch pan, fluting a high edge. With fork, prick sides and bottom of pie shell, and chill half an hour. Bake in 425-degree oven 15 minutes. Remove and reduce heat to 350 degrees. Combine cheese, onion and ham and sprinkle over bottom of shell. Combine egg yolks and additional whole egg, salt, mustards and cayenne. Beat till blended and beat in scalded cream. Pour over cheese mix. Bake 40-45 minutes or till knife inserted in center of pie comes out clean. Serve hot. Good with a chilled rose wine.

Youth Activities

Black clouds and a threat of more thundershowers didn't stop the weekend of fun at Tar Hollow for the 15 members of the Happy Trails Riding Club.

Clearing skies Saturday night revived everyone's spirits. In all, about seven hours of riding was enjoyed, and half of the time was spent going up and down the steep trails.

The only minor mishap occurred on Sunday when Jeff Ingram and Flicka got dunked in the icy creek.

The state has done a fine job of providing a nice horseman's camping area. The bride trails go through a beautiful area and many wild flowers were still in bloom. The fire pinks were especially pretty.

Everyone was filled with good food by Sunday evening, and all are looking forward to the next ride.

Members participating in the ride were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ingram, Jeff and Carolyn Ingram, Bill Green, Eddie, Connie, Dennis and Michael Hill, Hap Wilson, Mrs. Jane Rankin, Jim, Nina, Angie and Gayle Huffman.

Futility of inflation fight seen

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The anchovy, a major source of protein meal for livestock feed, disappeared from the waters off Peru. It forced cattle raisers to depend more on soybeans, which rose in price, forcing up beef prices.

Belatedly recognizing their enormous marketing power, the nations of the Mideast arbitrarily raised their oil prices, thus driving up the prices of countless products whose manufacture depends on energy.

Crop failures developed in the Soviet Union, Australia, China and Southeast Asia, and drought plagued huge portions of Africa. Enormous demands for U.S. grains resulted, and prices for food rose everywhere.

The world's underprivileged nations sought to raise their living standards by introducing greater variety and more protein into their diets. This added to demands on available food supplies. In response, prices rose.

These factors are part of the incredibly complex inflation problem that every American must deal with today. It's not only individual citizens who are appalled by the immensity of the problem; government are too.

What can Washington do about anchovies that change their living habits, perhaps in response to little understood changes in ocean currents? Can it prevent drought or excessive rain? Or keep the underprivileged deprived?

The futility of the inflation battle is found in the statistics gathered by the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, made up of more than 20 of the world's leading trading nations.

They show an annual rate of inflation in Greece of 33.4 per cent through March. In the same period, Portugal and Iceland also had an inflation rate of at least 30 per cent. In Japan, prices rose 24 per cent; in the United States, 10.2.

Assuming that 1970 prices equal 100, the spot price of wool at Sydney, Australia reached an index of 344 in 1973 and is only slightly below that figure now. Caribbean sugar at the Port of New York was at an index of 530 in April.

U.S. wheat at Kansas City reached 242 in 1973 and was 280 in mid-April. Ghana cocoa reached 187 at New York last year and was 345 in mid-April. London zinc leaped to 287 last year and almost doubled that, to 535, in April.

Are there other factors involved in such increases? The OECD maintains that the prices surges are "exacerbated by speculation," by the philosophy of buy now because you'll have to pay more tomorrow.

While recognizing the growing dangers of inflationary imbalances, there isn't one of the world's trading nations that can implement a master plan to protect itself. That, at least, has been the record.

Bowling Green teacher strike comes to end

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP) — Classes were to resume today for Bowling Green's 3,800 public school pupils after teachers voted to accept a 5.3 per cent salary increase and end a two-day strike.

The tentative, one-year agreement would cover all regular school employees and was announced jointly Monday night by the board of education, Bowling Green Teachers Association and the local chapter of the Public School Employees Association.

Some 184 teachers walked off the job Friday. The proposal accepted Monday night was the board's third offer in two days of negotiations.

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the nation's costliest tree houses, rushed to completion last month in Washington, D.C., hasn't been used since May 20. But don't ask if you can play in it if you come to Washington.

It's reserved exclusively for the two TV cameramen and a lighting director who'll be in it from the day the House Judiciary Committee finally opens its impeachment investigation to the public.

The tree house, so named by ABC officials, cost an estimated $19,000 to put up. It's located on the south side of the massive Rayburn Building, which cost an estimated $150 million to put up.

The cost of erecting the two-story tree house was shared by the three commercial networks and public television, according to spokesmen for ABC, which supervised the construction.

Unlike the Rayburn Building, which

Blaze hits Dennison

DENNISON, Ohio (AP) — Fire early today destroyed a four-story brick building at the abandoned Dennison Sewer Pipe Co. plant.

Officials said it was the latest in a series of fires in abandoned buildings in the area over the past year. A former hotel and two stores have also been destroyed and state investigators said arson was suspected in the earlier blazes.

The sewer pipe company plant had been abandoned for 12 years.

About 30 firemen from the Dennison and Uhrichsville departments fought the fire for about an hour before bringing it under control.

Firemen expressed concern for a time that the fire might spread to nearby oil storage tanks.

No injuries were reported.

took nearly three years to finish, the air-conditioned wood tree house was completed in one frantic night three weekends ago, ABC's Bob Siegenthaler says.

Siegenthaler, a senior producer in ABC News' special events department, said the rush job was made necessary because at that time it appeared the public hearings would start May 21.

Has anyone tried to tiptoe to the treehouse for bugging purposes or to eavesdrop on the committee's closed sessions?

"None of our people," laughed Siegenthaler, who said the committee orders periodic checks of the installation and puts a security man on duty during closed sessions to guard against unauthorized ears.

He said the structure was locked shut May 20 after tests of the camera and lighting gear and nobody was allowed to go in again.

17 rescued from blaze

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Two children were rescued from a third floor window and 15 other persons were ushered out of a smoke-filled apartment building late Monday night when a fire of undetermined origin swept through the structure.

Four firemen suffered minor injuries battling the three-alarm blaze in suburban Avondale. Damage was termed extensive.

Cincinnati Fire Chief Bert Lugannani said the fire apparently started in a stairwell. An arson investigation has been requested by Assistant Fire Chief Robert Schinaman, who heads the arson squad.

Approximately 70 persons live in the building, located just west of Xavier University.

Evert wins Rome title

ROME (AP) — Winning titles at the Rome tennis open turned out to be child's play. Or at least the work of teen-agers.

Chris Evert, 19, won the women's crown for her first major international triumph and Bjorn Borg, 17-year-old Swedish star, breezed past Ilie Nastase to take the men's title.

Borg was the youngest player ever to win a major tournament.

Miss Evert, from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Borg have both won bigger prize money than in Rome—$16,000 for Borg and $5,000 for Miss Evert—but their performances here were cornerstones in their careers.

Miss Evert beat another teenage star, Martina Navratilova of Czechoslovakia, 6-3, 6-3 in the women's final. Miss Evert was a finalist in Wimbledon, Paris and Rome last year and a semifinalist for three years running at Forest Hills.

She was a finalist in the Australian Open this year.

Miss Evert teamed with Olga Morozova of the Soviet Union to win the women's doubles title as Helga Masthoff and Heide Orth of West Germany defaulted because of injury.

Borg beat the top-seeded Nastase, considered one of the best players in the world, in straight sets 6-3, 6-4, 6-2 in Monday's final.

It took Borg just an hour and a half to upset the Romanian, who won here in 1970 and last year.

Raul Ramirez of Mexico and Brian Gottfried of Fort Lauderdale won the men's doubles defeating Nastase and Juan Gisbert of Spain 6-3, 6-2, 6-3.

The tournament was marred by two controversies.

Jimmy Connors of Belleville, Ill., who shares the No. 1 ranking in the United States, was banned from the tournament because he had played for World Team Tennis in the United States. The dispute over relations with the WTT has led to a feud within the International Lawn Tennis Federation. Many European countries have banned WTT players.

First-place Levi Boys upset by Mustangers

The last-place Mustangers, with a 5-run outbreak in the final inning upset the first-place Levi Boys 6-5 last night.

In the other game in the major league the Wheels massacred the Flashes 18-0.

The Mustangers got a good pitching performance from Norman Melvin who went the distance. They received a double from Thomas Ellis, the only extra-base hit in the game. Jon Thomas took the loss.

The Wheels also had excellent pitching from William Pressler but the 18-run attack behind him didn't hurt either. They received a home run from Brian Dadds among their fourteen hits. Ty Anderson took the loss for the Flashes.

In minor league action, Roller Haven blasted the Eagles 23-4 and K of C downed the Loafers 12-3. Roller Haven received three triples while their pitching duo of Tim Knisley and Pat Malone limited the Eagles to just two hits.

K of C was backed by two grand slams by Mark Bentley and James Croker while Tim Redman limited the Loafers to just five hits. Robert Smith took the loss.

Bowlers advance
Two teams from Washington C.H. are in the state finals of the Champion of Champions bowling tournament. In the men's regional held at Rainbow Lanes in Portsmouth, Ohio, Boyland and Cannon Electronics placed fourth. The state tournament, which will be held at Kinser Lanes, New Philadelphia, is slated for July 6-7.
Members of the team are Tom Vrettos, Roger Sheppard, Jim Brown, Jim Polk, and Gene Stanforth. They had a total of 3057 pins.
In the women's regional held at Kingpin Lanes in Cambridge, Connie's Coiffuers finished second with 2095 pins. The state finals will be held in Dover on July 6-7. Members of the team are Wanda Willis, Florence Smith, Dora Williamson, Donna Wolfe and Jerri Greene.

The soft-spoken center fielder doubled and singled, scoring one run and driving in one, and made a spectacular throw from left-center field to home plate on the fly, cutting down a baserunner and killing a promising Mets' rally.

Last Oct. 8, in the third game of the National League playoffs, Rose barreled into Mets' shortstop Bud Harrelson, breaking up a double play. The two came up swinging and that match signaled the start of a massive bench-clearing melee.

Monday night's game was the first in New York for the Reds since the playoffs. Rose was the star of the show before the first pitch was ever thrown. The Mets had extra security guards and they kept the left field stands—the ones that had held last season's garbage throwers—empty.

"It was nice," Rose said. "Of course, that's partly because we won. Oh, I heard a few remarks, you know, the stuff like, 'ahh, ya bum, ya.' But let's face it, these are Mets' fans. I hear the same stuff around the rest of the league.

"But the fans didn't throw anything, they didn't say anything out of the ordinary...it was just a very nice game."

The Reds built a 3-0 lead against Jon Matlack, 5-3, on Foster's double and Andy Kosco's single in the second inning. Dave Concepcion's RBI-double in the third and Johnny Bench's RBI-single in the fourth. Then came the turning-point bottom of the fourth.

The Mets got a run off Clay Kirby, 4-3, on a walk and singles by Dave Schneck and Jerry Grote, then loaded the bases with two out when Kosco booted Teddy Martinez' grounder to third.

Rose, in left, and Foster converged on the ball. "I could hear Pete yelling, 'home,' Foster said. "When I looked up, Grote was just rounding third. So I really unloaded."

The ball sailed on a line to Bench at home. The catcher had to stretch to catch it, but he was right over the plate. All he had to do was drop his glove. Grote slid right into it.

The Mets had scored a second run but Grote, who would have been the tying one, was out.

"Boy, that was one hell of a throw, wasn't it?" said Rose. "I'll tell you, it really saved the game for us at that point."

And Foster joked: "Wasn't it nice the way I kept the ball in the game, not getting it dirty?"

The Reds added single runs in the fifth on Marv Rettenmund's double and Foster's single and wrapped it up when Rettenmund singled for a run. While public enemy Pete Rose was under heavy surveillance in New York Monday night, Larry Bowa had Carl Morton all staked out in Philadelphia.

Meanwhile in the only other National League game, Bowa learned something while watching Atlanta pitcher Morton and turned his knowledge into a stolen base that set up the tiebreaking run in the Philadelphia Phillies' 5-2 victory over the Braves.

In the only American League game, the Minnesota Twins edged the Boston Red Sox 5-4 in 12 innings and the Baltimore Orioles nipped the Kansas City Royals 4-3.

Phillies 5, Braves 2

Del Unser squeezed Bowa home from third base with the tie-breaking run in the eighth inning and Willie Montanez followed with a two-run double. Meanwhile, Steve Carlton held the Braves to six hits and struck out 11.

Bowa opened the eighth with a single off Morton and went to second on Greg Luzinski's oneout single. Having run a make on Morton's modus operandi, Bowa then stole third—his 16th consecutive theft and 17th in 18 attempts this season—and beat Morton's desperate throw to the plate on Unser's bunt.

Twins, 5, Red Sox 4

Larry Hise singled home the winning run with the bases loaded in the 12th inning and Bill Hands contributed a brilliant relief stint to notch his 100th major league victory.

Orioles 4, Royals 3

Grant Jackson, Baltimore's third pitcher of the seventh inning, choked off a Kansas City rally and preserved Baltimore's victory. Doyle Alexander, making only his third start, entered the inning with a 4-1 lead but was replaced by Bob Reynolds with two on and two out.

West praises Walton, Wilkens

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — "I've read some stories which made it sound as though I was Bill's father," Jerry West said with a grin.

"I know Bill and he's one of the nicest people that I have met involved with basketball..." said the longtime backcourt star for the Los Angeles Lakers.

Bill is Bill Walton, the 6-foot-11 UCLA All-American who has signed a five-year contract with the Portland Trail Blazers of the National Basketball Association.

"What I like about him most as a player," West said of Walton, "is that he's very unselfish. He has always been a winner and that is contagious."

West was in Portland briefly Monday to purchase a foreign car from an auto dealer. In a nearby hospital, Walton was recovering from minor knee surgery.

"Portland has done two very positive things since the end of the season," West said. "One was signing Walton. The other was hiring Lenny Wilkens as coach. Wilkens, I think, has one of the fine basketball minds in the game."

"In this game you can't get dominated in the middle," West continued. "And with Walton, the Blazers won't get dominated in the middle."

West, still referring to Walton, said he thought the Blazers picked up the player "who will make the other players play as a unit ... Portland's big problem," he said, "is to feel it can beat anyone."

"I think Portland will be right there in the Western Division next year," he said.

But, he added that the Lakers are going to be improved, predicting a story shortly to that effect. He acknowledged that he might be referring to Cazzie Russell, who played out his option with Golden State.

West, who has played for the Lakers in all of his 14 NBA seasons, recently signed a multiyear pact with the Lakers which calls for him to play one more season and then work in the front office for five years.

"I hope I'll be able to play this season," said the NBA veteran, who missed most of last year because of assorted ailments.

Maxflis Wednesday night golf leaders

Maxflis opened a 3 and one-half point lead over the second place Tourneys in the Wednesday Night Golf League as six teams participated in a match at the Washington Country Club.

The Maxflis were defeated despite their first place ranking by the Titleists 12-11. In other action, the Tourneys took the Top Flites 10-8 and the Blue Maxes nipped the Reds 10-9.

Jim Morrison of the Top Flites carded a 38 score the lowest of the night. Richard Andrews was low scorer for the Reds with a 41, Everett Rudolph carded low score for the Blue Max with a 46, Ralph Tate carded a 44 for the Titleists, Loren Noble and Herb Bonner scored 45 for the Maxfli and Howard Mann carded a 43 for the Tourneys.

Next Wednesday's action sees the Top Flites meet the Tourneys, the Blue Max take on the Reds and the Titleists play the Maxflis.

EXAMINE WRECKAGE — Police examine wreckage of Los Angeles police helicopter that crashed in a remote canyon near the Los Angeles suburb of San Fernar during a training flight, killing one policeman and seriously injuring three other officers. A letter claiming that the Symbionese Liberation Army used a missile to shoot down the copter was received by station KNXT in Los Angeles.

Fayette Street buildings now undergoing renovation

Two buildings on the west side of Fayette St., between Market Street and the alley to the north, are now in the process of extensive remodeling and redecoration and the third, a small frame residence property between the two, is being torn down to make space for a private parking lot.

The three properties in the half block were purchased from the Roney Auto Parts Co., which acquired them some time ago from Trent Sickles, former owner of the Washington Hotel, by the Lafayette Co., a family corporation comprised of Mr. and Mrs. Richard R. Willis, their three sons, David, Dale and Duke, and their daughter, Mrs. Dawn Freeman, of Salisbury, Md.

One of the city's old landmarks—the almost square two story brick building which stands flush with the sidewalks at the corner of Fayette and Market Sts., was included in the deal. It includes four apartments, one of three rooms, on of two rooms and two single-room "bachelor" apartments and a ground floor two-room office suite. All except the office are rented. A smaller apartment at the rear is now being remodeled. The frame residence building on Fayette St., at the alley, has two apartments, one on the first floor and one on the second, both occupied.

Both properties, Willis said, are in good condition, having been renovated, with much new plumbing and heating equipment installed by Sickles a short time before he sold them. About all that remains to be done is the painting and minor repairs on the two apartment buildings and the razing of the small building between them for a parking lot for the apartment tenants.

Storms hit in plains

By The Associated Press

Thunderstorms prowled the Plains today after unleashing high winds, hail and tornadoes from the Dakotas to Texas.

Numerous funnel clouds were sighted late Monday, but twisters reportedly touched down only in north-central Texas, and near Clifford, N.D.; Claremont, Minn.; Aberdeen, S.D., and Liberal, Kan.

More than 4 inches of rain deluged an area near Paducah, Tex., in two hours while up to 3 inches during the similar period caused flooding throughout the Texas south plains.

Scattered storms also hit areas of Florida and the central and Northern Rockies early today, and parts of the Pacific Northwest were dampened by showers.

Skies were clear over most of the Ohio Valley, the middle and northern Atlantic Coast states, southern Texas, and the western Plains.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 87 at Needles, Calif., to 43 at Laramie, Wyo.

State releases April figures on welfare aid

According to a release from the office of Joseph T. Ferguson, state auditor, Fayette County received $10,579 in welfare assistance money during the month of April.

The total amount of money distributed throughout the state was $5,815,020.97, of which $2,238,530.05 was for the Aid for Dependent Children program. The remaining $3,576,490.92 was given to subsidize general relief and administration cost.

The largest total of aid money was sent to Cuyahoga County which received $1,179,550. The smallest amount went to Paulding County which received $3,893.

The subsidies for some surrounding counties were: Clinton, $13,829; Greene, $52,585; Highland, $13,726; Madison, $10,934; Ross, $30,907; and Pickaway, $11,847.

Sabina Council meeting short

SABINA—The Village Council meeting Monday night was one of the shortest in a long time. Routine bills totaling $3,005.05 were approved and a building permit for construction of a one-room addition to his home was issued to Glenn Reitelcliff.

New Israeli cabinet holds meet

By The Associated Press

Yitzhak Rabin's new Israeli cabinet holds its inaugural meeting today after its approval by a 61-51 vote of confidence in the Israeli parliament.

The Knesset accepted the Jewish nation's first nativeborn—or sabra—premier and his 18-member cabinet after nearly eight hours of stormy debate in which conservative hard-liners charged that the new government was top-heavy with doves.

The margin was one of the closest on a confirmation vote in Israeli history. But it is likely to be closer on future votes since Rabin's coalition numbers only 61 of the 120 Knesset members, or a majority of two.

Although Rabin is known as a moderate on relations with the Arabs and his cabinet includes at least four members who considered the previous government's foreign policy too unyielding, the new premier in his statement to the Knesset outlined a policy toward Israel's Arab foes no different from that of his predecessor, Premier Golda Meir.

He said he would work for "a just, honorable" peace by stages "but not at any price" and meanwhile would keep the armed forces at maximum strength. He rejected an independent Palestinian state, negotiations with the Palestinian guerrillas and return of all the territory captured in the 1967 war.

Rabin said his first objective would be to advance the peace negotiations with Egypt. Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy in a comment on the new premier's speech called on him to renounce Israel's "old colonialist concept" and "accept the presence of a secular Palestine state within or beside her."

The prospect of Israeli-Egyptian negotiations apparently got a boost from the leaders of the Palestine guerrilla movement. They were reported to have agreed at a meeting in Cairo not to join in Arab-Israeli peace negotiations at this time and to set conditions for future participation that Israel would never accept.

Meanwhile, the economic commission of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries recommended that the posted price of Arabian light crude oil be raised from $11.65 to $12.67 a barrel. But informed sources said the OPEC was expected to reject the proposal since Abderrahman Khene, OPEC's secretary general, has said the organization wanted to keep oil prices at the present level for the third quarter of the year.

Meanwhile, it was reported that the Algerian government had defied the other Arab oil states by unilaterally lifting the embargo on oil shipments to the Netherlands and canceling the reduction on shipments to Denmark.

Commissioners reappoint Beekman to zoning board

In the only major matter under consideration by the county commissioners Monday afternoon, Delbert Beekman was reappointed to the Fayette County Board of Zoning Appeals.

Beekman, of U.S. 35-S, will serve another five-year term as a result of the appointment. His last term expired June 1.

Each member of the five-seat board serves a five-year term. One term expires June 1 of each year.

The four other members currently serving are Wilbur Rapp, Jon Ervin, Barton Montgomery and Russell Hatfield Sr.

The commissioners also announced that they are ready to receive bids on another Sheriff's vehicle. The bids will be opened at 10 a.m. July 15.

Armstrong Solarian® is a floor that keeps its promise.

It shines without wax.

Here's a floor that really does shine without waxing! Homemakers from coast to coast have discovered that Solarian keeps its high gloss—without waxing—far longer than an ordinary vinyl floor can, including their neighbor's "no-wax" floors. Spills, dirt, even black heel marks come up easily, ending the drudgery of scrubbing, waxing and stripping.

Opening lead — king of spades.

Bridge is a partnership game, and nowhere does this assert itself more forcefully than during defensive play.

Let's assume you're East and partner leads the king of spades against four hearts. You overtake the king with the ace in order to protect against the possibility that the king is a singleton. No harm can come from winning with the ace, regardless of whether South has a singleton, doubleton or tripleton spade.

The overtake turns out to be a necessary move because, when you play the queen, West shows out, discarding the three of clubs. When you then cash the jack of spades, West discards the three of diamonds and the question is what to play next.

If you are accustomed to obeying partner's signals, you have no problem. West, by discarding a low club and low diamond, has asked you not to play those suits. It would be pointless to shift to a trump, so, by elimination, you lead another spade at trick four, even though this play offers declarer a ruff and discard.

This turns out well when your partner acquires a trump trick he would not otherwise have made. The fourth spade lead would have been equally effective had West held the J-x-x of trumps instead of the Q-x. Either way, your spade continuation is sure to do the job.

It is obvious from West's negative signals in diamonds and clubs that he lacks the ace of either suit. He would surely have signaled with a high card to show an ace, if he had one. By inference, therefore, partner is demanding another spade, and there is no good reason to disobey him.

Laxatives: Yes, No?

My husband changes from laxative to laxative, depending on which commercial he listens to. Can't these be harsh and troublesome if taken for a long period of time?

Mrs. J.E.V., Tex.

Dear Mrs. V.:
The laxative habit is an easy one to fall into. It is astonishing how frequently that habit can be broken by a well-balanced diet that includes cereal, fresh and cooked fruits, vegetables and especially plenty of water.

Too many people concentrate on an urgent need for "daily regularity." There is no fixed rule that says that every person must have a bowel movement every day. Many people that are in perfect health may have a movement every two or even every three days.

If people would understand this fact they would be less prone to bounce from one laxative to another. They would wait for the intestinal tract to do its own regulating.

When a doctor prescribes a laxative, he does so for a particular reason, and he chooses one that will accomplish this purpose. Some laxatives act by increasing bulk in the intestinal tract. Others act by stimulating the inner lining. Therefore the choice of a laxative is never a haphazard one, and should not be predicated on the highly exploited sales pitch of "regularity."

I am embarrassed because my eyelashes have fallen out completely. I am 16. What can I do about it?

Miss R.L., Ky.

Dear Miss I.:
If there is no local infection around the eyelashes then the answer to your problem must be sought in allergic studies.

Cosmetics, eye makeup and even nail polish could be the offenders.

It is also known that people under severe emotional stress may sometimes lose their eyelashes. The stress of examinations, for example, may be the cause of your problem.

Are sulfa drugs antibiotics? Mrs. N.N., N.C.

Dear Mrs. N.:
Sulfa drugs are different technically from antibiotics although they are both used to combat infections.

The decision of the doctor to use one or the other depends on the character of the bacteria involved. Sulfa drugs, unlike antibiotics, are synthetic chemicals.

Thurman W. Plummer, Plaintiff, vs.
Jim Emrick, et al., Defendants.

Case No. CI-74-37

LEGAL NOTICE BY PUBLICATION

To Jim Emrick whose last known address was 320 Kansas Avenue, Fort Lauderdale, Florida and Joyce Emrick whose last known address was 320 Kansas Avenue, Fort Lauderdale, Florida, and whose present address is unknown and with reasonable diligence cannot be ascertained, you will take notice that Thurman W. Plummer on the 25th day of February, 1974, filed a Complaint in the Court of Common Pleas of Fayette County, Ohio, in Case No. CI-74-37, praying for a judgment on a certain note and a foreclosure of certain properties described as follows:

Situate in the City of Washington, County of Fayette and State of Ohio, to-wit:

FIRST PARCEL: Being Lot Number 35 in G.D. Baker's Belle-Aire Subdivision of lands in the City of Washington (formerly adjoining the City of Washington) Fayette County, Ohio. For a more particular description, reference is hereby made to the Plat of said Addition and restrictive covenants therein contained recorded in Plat Book 8, Pages 11 and 12, in the Recorder's Office, Fayette County, Ohio.

SECOND PARCEL: Being Twenty-five feet (25') on the east side of Lot Numbered Thirty four (No. 34) in G.D. Baker's Belle-Aire Subdivision of Lands No. 1 in the City of Washington (formerly adjoining the City of Washington), Fayette County, Ohio. (For a more particular description reference is hereby made to the Plat of said Addition, and restrictive covenants therein contained, recorded in Plat Book "B", pages 10 to 12, Fayette County Recorder's Office), be the same more or less, but subject to all legal highways.

THIRD PARCEL: Beginning at a point in the lines of Paint and Walnut Streets which is the northwest corner of the intersection of said streets; thence S. 57 deg. 38' W. with the northeasterly line of Paint Street and the southeasterly line of the Eli Bereman tract of land of which this is a part, 41.51 feet more or less to a point in the northwesterly line of Paint Street, 40.99 feet distant; thence northeasterly from the east corner of Lot No. 553 of the Bereman Addition to said city and corner to said Taylor; thence with the north line of said Bereman tract and the south line of said Fractional Lot No. 553 N. 89 1/2 deg. E. 55 feet more or less to a stake in the westerly line of Walnut Street and easterly corner of said Fractional Lot No. 553; thence with the westerly line of Walnut Street S. 42 deg. 22' E. 52.14 feet more or less to the place of beginning and being a part of the fourth tract described in the deed from Rell G. Allen to Mary Ellen McBride and John C. McBride dated November 16, 1944, and recorded in Deed Records Vol. 73, Page 367, Fayette County, Ohio.

FOURTH PARCEL: Beginning at a point in the northwesterly line of Paint Street 40.99 feet distant northeasterly from the east corner of Lot No. 553 of the Bereman Addition to said city, which point is the southerly corner of a tract heretofore conveyed to William E. Frasure, Jr., and Wanda Lou Frasure; thence with Frasure's southwesterly line N. 42 deg. 22' W. parallel with Walnut Street 88 feet more or less to a point in the north line of the Eli Bereman tract and in the south line of Fractional Lot No. 553 of the Stevens Addition to said city and being the westerly corner of said Frasure's tract; thence with the above lines S. 89 1/2 deg. W. 5 1/2 feet more or less to a point corner to a tract this day deeded to Herschel Wayne Taylor; thence a new line following Taylor's line S. 42 deg. 22' E. parallel with and 5 feet distant from the first described line 89 feet more or less to a point in the northwesterly line of Paint Street a new corner to said Taylor; thence with the line of Paint Street N. 47 deg. 38' E. 5 feet to the place of beginning and being a strip of land 5 feet wide and part of the fourth tract described in the deed from Rell G. Allen to Mary Ellen McBride and John C. McBride dated November 16, 1944, and recorded in Deed Records Vol. 73, Page 367, Fayette County, Ohio.

In Focus

Charlie Pensyl

Last week we were on the subject of exposure. We suggested that you bracket, just to be sure to get one shot with the proper exposure. It's surprising how often we choose one of the "over" or "under" shots, rather than the "on the button" shot. This should indicate that bracketing is a practice we should use more often if we strive for perfection.

This fact was illustrated to me recently when Eastman Kodak Company sent one of their top photographers to town to get some color pix in and around our camera shop for a unit on our CKFN classes to be used in a nationally distributed presentation on innovative sales techniques. This photographer, a guy named Jim Dennis, certainly was a believer in the bracket technique. Man, this boy didn't just go over one and under one, Jim went over 3 or 4 and under 3 or 4. When I commented about his shooting so much film he was quick to assure me that film was much cheaper than jet fares, and to have to fly back to re-shoot an assignment could be most costly in both time and money. How true. His last assignment had been in Beirut, and he was quite sure that Kodak would be vexed to have to fly him back to Lebanon for retakes.

Film is cheap. It is indeed a mistake not to bracket when it is important to get that important picture. Or, better yet, get a Honeywell Pentax ES and forget exposure problems. Think about it.

DISASTER PREPAREDNESS—as explained by Dick Burrows, executive director of the Miami Valley Disaster Services Authority. Burrows lectured Monday evening at the Washington C.H. Fire Department to a crowd of 115 interested citizens and explained the steps Washington C.H. should take to help prepare it for a possible catastrophe.

City urged to develop disaster program

BY MARK THELLMANN

"My job is to help people," avowed Dick Burrows, executive director of the Miami Valley Disaster Services Authority, at the conclusion of his talk at the Washington C.H. Fire Department Monday evening—and that's exactly what he had done.

Burrows discussed several disaster he has been exposed to during his 15 years of serving the organization, but the heaviest emphasis was placed on what happened in Xenia April 3, when a tornado destroyed most of the city.

"At 4:06 p.m., the city of Xenia was alerted to the presence of a tornado 25 miles northeast of Cincinnati, traveling at a speed of 50 miles per hour straight toward it," Burrows explained.

He went on to say the Xenia Police Department, and the radio and television media did all they could on the short notice to warn the people of the impending danger due to befall their city.

"This communication gave many people time to prepare and thus saved many lives who otherwise would have perished, but as we found out after the tragedy, it wasn't enough. Every city, every town must have a disaster preparedness plan. Xenia did its best, but really didn't have one," Burrows said.

Burrows narrated a color film of the Xenia destruction, taken the day after the disaster, to emphasize his point. Afterwards, he outlined a basic plan which every community could adopt, which would provide a crucial edge on any catastrophe.

A total of 115 persons, including city council members, the Washington C.H. Fire and Police Departments, the Fayette Sheriff's Department, the state Highway Patrol, county commissioners, area civil defense unit representatives and interested citizens, listened attentively to what Burrows had to say.

The key to Burrows' plan was "total involvement." Everyone would be involved, from the city planners to the Girl Scouts and all citizens.

Burrows added that in the past a subject like disaster preparedness came under the jurisdiction of civil defense, but civil defense no longer exists. The agency is now called, the "Defense Civil Preparedness Agency," and as much as 50 per cent of the cost incurred by a community in having a disaster preparedness plan can be federally funded through the new agency.

Xenia's biggest problem, according to Burrows, was lack of organization.

"Many organizations and people came to help in Xenia, but here was one to tell them what to do or where to go. Chaos prevailed and this added to the general confusion and hysteria. It was a mess!" Burrows exclaimed.

"After you develop your disaster preparedness plan, the public must be made aware of it and how it functions," Burrows continued, "and it must be practiced every eight months or so in order to work out the bugs and keep it polished."

Washington C. H. Fire Chief M. M. (Joe) Denen commented after Burrows finished his talk that Washington C.H. had a lot to do and a long way to go, and City Manager Dan Wolford summed it all up by stating, "It's evident what must be done. Washington C.H. must develop its disaster preparedness plan and it must be done soon."

The rarest dog in the world is the lowchen or lion dog, of which only 52 were reported in October 1971. The breed was a famous lapdog of the nobility of southern Europe during the Renaissance period.

3 accidents investigated

A rear-end collision occurred on the CCC-Highway-W and a Sabina woman lost control of her vehicle and struck a fence on U.S. 22, the Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported. The Washington C.H. Police Department investigated a car-truck accident early this morning.

Thomas H. Bryan, 19, Rt 6 and Pamela Sue Penn, 18, Wilmington.

The Bryan car had slowed on the CCC-Highway-W, one-tenth mile southwest of the Washington C. H. corporation line, for the care ahead which was making a right turn.

The Penn auto couldn't stop in time and struck the Bryan car, deputies said doing moderate damage to both vehicles. No one was injured or cited, sheriff's deputies reported.

A car driven by Zelma May Mercer, 60, Sabina, went out of control when she applied the brakes at 9:35 a.m. Monday. She applied the brakes in order to keep from hitting an unidentified vehicle making a left turn in front of her, as she traveled east on U.S. 22, near the Staunton Jasper Road intersection.

The Mercer car slid off the left side of the road and struck a fence owned by Carter Lumber, sheriff's deputies reported.

An accident at the intersection of Columbus Avenue and Fayette Center occurred at 8:32 a.m. today between a truck driven by Burrell M. Workman, 52, Miami Trace Road and a car driven by Phyllis Jean Pratter, 20, Jeffersonville.

City Police investigating the mishap reported moderate damage incurred by the Pratter auto and slight damage to the Workman truck.

Porno defendants late for jury trial

Confusion abounded in The Fayette County Courthouse Monday when approximately 40 prospective jurors arrived for a trial in Common Pleas Court, but one of two defendants did not.

Two men, Robert Lemons, of Greenfield, and Michael Marmura, of Reynoldsburg, were scheduled to face the jury on charges of the sale and possession for the sale of pornography. However, Marmura didn't show up for the 9 a.m. trial until after 12 noon.

By that time Common Pleas Judge Evelyn W. Coffman has declared his $1,500 bond forfeited. When he did arrive showing the cause for tardiness was "beyond his control," the judge reinstated the bond.

The reason Marmura didn't arrive on time was the same reason Lemons nearly didn't make the scene; he hadn't been notified of the court date.

The confusion began when Lemons decided not to be represented by the same Columbus attorney representing Marmura. Some months ago, he solicited John C. Bryan, of Washington C.H., to represent him. However, the notification of trial date was sent to his former attorney, Marmura's counsel, in Columbus.

Bryan heard of the trial date purely by accident. He then notified Lemons, and both of them appeared early Monday morning.

For some unknown reason, Marmura's attorney never notified his client of the trial date. At the time the trial was scheduled to begin in Common Pleas Court, he was involved in court in Columbus.

After being contacted by the Fayette County court, he notified his client and arrived in Washington C.H. shortly before noon. Marmura appeared a short time later. By the time he had arrived, however the prospective jurors had long since been excused.

Why the defendants themselves had not been notified of the trial date by the court is not known.

The trial has now been rescheduled for 9 a.m. June 21.

Both men had been arrested by Sheriff's deputies shortly after the February term of the Fayette County grand jury had returned secret indictments against them. The indictments charge both men with misdemeanors.

It is believed that counsel for both defendants will argue that the material in question was solely for the private use of the defendants, and not for sale.

Believe walleye population rise likely in lake

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio wildlife officials say the walleye population of Lake Erie, once dangerously low, could be on the upswing.

But whether the fish contain less mercury than in 1970, when the U.S. Food and Drug Administration ordered a ban in fishing, isn't really known, officials said Monday.

"The walleye population is what we might call static, or slightly improving," said Russell School, supervisor of Lake Erie fisheries.

The Ohio Division of Wildlife in 1972 ordered a five-year moratorium on walleye fishing in the lake, primarily to build up a depleted stock.

4 persons dead in domestic tiff

LANCASTER, Ohio (AP) — A domestic quarrel in Lancaster Monday night claimed the lives of four people, police said today.

The victims were identified as Leslie Hunt, 53, his estranged wife, Delores, and Mr. and Mrs. James Iser.

Lancaster police said Hunt was arguing with his wife over support payments for their children. He apparently pulled a gun, shot his wife and the couple visiting her, then turned the gun on himself, police said.

Firm schedules interviews, but won't release its name

A plastics manufacturing firm is currently considering expansion into the Washington C.H. area and will be holding interviews at the Washington Inn Friday.

The firm, which is not releasing its name, will use the results of the interviews to determine in part whether Washington C.H. would be a suitable location. The interviews will indicate whether this area can supply labor suitable to its needs.

When the company will make a final decision, or when the name of the firm will be released, are not immediately known.

Personnel for several types of positions will be interviewed. They include skilled and unskilled laborers and manufacturing supervisors.

The interviews will be held from 2 until 6 p.m. Friday. Anyone who is interested must apply in person.

According to a Dayton representative for the firm, the company is not Raven Industries, a plastics firm which has already selected Washington C.H. as the location for a new plant.

Raven, based in South Dakota, is currently seeking a contractor for its plant here. When it is completed, the company will employ 14 local workers initially. The target date for starting operations is early November.

Money Does Matter . . .

SOME SIMPLE SUGGESTIONS FOR THE USE OF CHECKS . . .

1. Keep cancelled (and blank) checks safe. They are your receipts for payments made — and, a forger-finder could use them to copy your signature.

2. Stop payment on very old or lost checks.

3. Process checks you receive immediately, without delay.

4. Refuse to accept a check more than 6-months old unless you first consult with the Bank on which it is issued.

5. As soon as you receive a check, endorse it, "For deposit only" (so that if you lose it a finder cannot use it. Checks can be lost in the mail, while on the way to the Bank.)

A "Certified" check is your personal check, one which your Bank promises to set aside money, out of your account, to pay when it is properly endorsed. It must not be destroyed. If not used it must be returned to the issuing Bank for credit to your account.

A "Cashier's" Check is a Bank's own check ordering payment out of the Bank's own funds. Properly endorsed, it may be cashed or deposited in any Bank, cash or out of your account, and the Bank writes the check for your use. Somewhat like a "Money Order."

We want to wish the best to the graduating seniors from Miami Trace and Washington Senior High.

Congratulations to Dr. Byers W. Shaw on being installed as president of the Ohio Chapter of the American College of Surgeons.

There are so many services which our Bank, your friendly First National Bank of Washington Court House, is ready and prepared to perform for you in order to make your money management concerns a real pleasure. More services than you'd ever dream of!

May become key figure in inquiry

Colson says he'll tell all he knows

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former White House counsel Charles W. Colson's desire to "tell everything I know" could make him a key figure in the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment inquiry.

Colson's conversations with President Nixon on subjects involved in the inquiry are among those tapes the committee has subpoenaed and Nixon has refused to provide.

He also has played a leading role in White House dealings with the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp., dairy co-ops, and in the activities of the White House plumbers. The committee begins looking into ITT matters today.

Colson pleaded guilty Monday to a single count of obstructing justice in the trial of Daniel Ellsberg, accused of leaking the Pentagon papers. Under an arrangement with special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski, Colson will not be prosecuted on three other charges in the Ellsberg case and in the Watergate cover-up.

Colson said he agreed to the arrangement so he would be free "to tell everything I know about the Watergate and Watergate-related matters."

The 42-year-old lawyer will be sentenced June 21 on a charge that he carried out a plan to "defame and destroy the public image and credibility" of Ellsberg. A felony, it carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

His arrangement with Jaworski is designed to make him available as a prosecution witness in the various trials the special prosecutor is preparing. But William Merrill, assistant special prosecutor, said Colson would be free to testify before the Judiciary Committee if he wants to.

Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., who hopes to speed up the inquiry by limiting the number of witnesses, would not comment about the possibility that Colson would be called. No decision will be made on witnesses, he said, until all documentary evidence has been presented in about three weeks.

Other committee members, however, said they hoped Colson would be called.

Earlier Monday, Robert McClory of Illinois became the first Republican on the committee to speak in favor of finding Nixon in contempt of Congress, if that would result in getting the tapes the committee has subpoenaed.

The Senate Watergate Committee also may call Colson.

His importance as a potential witness in the impeachment inquiry is underscored in a Judiciary Committee staff memorandum to members justifying a request for various taped presidential conversations.

It lists nine telephone calls and meetings between Nixon and Colson bearing on the Watergate break-in, payments to keep the convicted burglars quiet and an alleged offer of executive clemency to one of them.

In the ITT antitrust settlement, which became involved in the Senate confirmation hearings of Richard Kleindienst as attorney general, Colson urged that the nomination be withdrawn.

Nixons on cruise near capitol

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon took Mrs. Nixon and their daughter and son-in-law, Julie and David Eisenhower, for a dinner cruise on the Potomac.

The yacht, the Sequoia, reportedly cruised south of the capitol Monday night.

The presidential party returned to the White House at 8:05 p.m. EDT.

"His reason included the possibility that documents would be revealed suggesting that the President was involved in the ITT situation ..." the memorandum says.

In 1970, it says, Colson served as the White House contact for the Associated Milk Producers Inc. and received its pledge for a $2 million contribution to Nixon's re-election campaign.

The committee is investigating whether milk price support increases were approved in return for the contributions.

Nixon, dirty trick linked by Magruder

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jeb Stuart Magruder says he was told that President Nixon approved at least one campaign dirty trick in 1972—a phony write-in campaign for Sen. Edward M. Kennedy in the New Hampshire Democratic primary.

Magruder, who goes to prison today for his part in the Watergate scandal, recounts the incident in his book, "An American Life—One Man's Road to Watergate," scheduled for publication June 26.

Most of the first-person account retraces with some new detail the Watergate events spelled out in his dramatic Senate testimony last summer, but Magruder discloses a few new incidents.

Report House members got milk money

WASHINGTON (AP) — At least 16 members of the House Judiciary Committee accepted political donations ranging from $100 to $11,000 from the same three dairy farmer cooperatives the panel is investigating as part of its impeachment probe.

Two members, Democrat Charles B. Rangel of New York and Republican Thomas F. Railsback of Illinois, decided to return the money after being questioned about it by The Associated Press.

Rangel got $100 from Associated Milk Producers, Inc. last March, and sent it back Monday with a letter saying it would be improper for him to accept it.

An aide to Railsback said he would give back $500 that he received from the same group in 1972 "because he wants to be free of any conflict of interest."

The others, including committee chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., who got $4,100, said they saw no conflict.

The biggest recorded donation went to Rep. Edward Mezvinsky, a first-term Democrat from Iowa, who got $11,000.

According to public records going back to April 7, 1972, these committee members were given money by one or more of the co-ops, Associated Milk Producers, Inc., Dairymen, Inc., and Mid-America Dairymen, Inc.:

M. Caldwell Butler, R-Va., $1,500; William S. Cohen, R-Maine, $3,000; John Conyers Jr., D-Mich., $100; David Dennis, R-Ind., $500; Walter Flowers, D-Ala., $1,000; Harold V. Froehlich, R-Wis., $100; William L. Hungate, D-Mo., $2,300; Robert W. Kastenmeier, D-Wis., $2,650; Trent Lott, R-Miss., $2,500; Robert McClory, R-Ill., $500; Mezvinsky, $11,000; Wayne Owens, D-Utah, $2,600; Railsback, $500; Rangel, $100; Rodino, $4,100 and Jerome R. Waldie, D-Calif., $200.

Kastenmeier, Hungate and Flowers were among sponsors of legislation to raise the federal support price for milk in 1971. The White House has cited this legislation, sponsored eventually by 121 House members, as a key reason President Nixon overruled the Agriculture Department and raised milk price supports in March 1971.

He said the write-in was conceived by former special presidential counsel Charles W. Colson "to create confusion among the Democrats" and "sow ill will between Kennedy and (Sen. Edmund S.) Muskie," who was considered the frontrunner in the Democratic presidential race.

Magruder, who was deputy director of President Nixon's re-election campaign, said he opposed the multi-thousand-dollar plan because "it seemed like a large outlay for a dubious result."

"Then, one day in February, I was in the White House and encountered Colson just outside the President's office," Magruder wrote. "We've got to get that mailing going," he told me. "I've just come from talking to the President, and he thinks it's crucial."

Magruder said White House chief of staff H.R. Haldeman "told me that what Colson said was true, the President did want the pro-Kennedy mailing in New Hampshire."

The mailing seeking Kennedy write-in votes did go out but netted fewer than 1,000 votes. Magruder termed it "a waste of time and money."

The Senate Watergate committee investigated the incident last year but apparently was unable to trace the mailing to its source.

Magruder implicated former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell in the decision approving the break-in and bugging of Democratic headquarters in the Watergate complex and recounted the careful plans to cover up high-level involvement in the abortive scheme.

He wrote that shortly after the June 17, 1972 break-in, he played tennis with then-Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, who asked: "Jeb, what the hell is going on?"

"It was our operation," I said. "It got screwed up. We're trying to take care of it," Magruder said he replied. "Agnew frowned and looked away. 'I don't think we ought to discuss it again, in that case.'"

Chuck Wilson wins Christman Award

By LARRY WATTS

Record-Herald Sports Editor

Chuck Wilson, a standout football and track star at Washington Senior High School, was the recipient of the 1974 Clarence A. Christman Award at a Lafayette Inn dinner meeting Monday night.

Recognizing Wilson as the most outstanding "Athlete-Scholar-Leader" in Fayette County, the sixth annual award honors one of the county's past sports enthusiasts - the late Clarence A. Christman, Jr. Glenn Gifford, last year's winner, presented the award to Wilson.

Wilson was selected from a field of seven candidates nominated by head coaches of the major sports at Washington Senior and Miami Trace high schools. The other nominees included Gary Cobb, Miami Trace; David Steinhauer, Miami Trace; Randy Reiber, Miami Trace; Jeff King, Miami Trace; Doug Ford, Miami Trace; and Jeff Wallace, Washington C.H.

Wilson, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Wilson, 526 Delaware St., was nominated by football coach Maurice Pfeiffer and track coach Dick Roth. He earned three varsity letters in each sport.

Accepting an appointment to the U.S. Naval Academy, Wilson finished 38th in a class of 177 with a 2.964 cumulative average. He is six feet tall and weight 185 pounds.

AS A TWO-WAY starter on the football team for three years, Wilson is the holder of nine school records. He led the South Central Ohio League in scoring for two seasons and topped all Ohio classes in scoring in 1973. He was a first team SCOL selection two years, Southeastern District Back of the Year in 1973, All-Ohio first team honoree and Associated Press Player of the Year in 1973 and an honorable mention selection to Prep All-America.

Wilson placed third in the class AA state long jump competition this past season. Serving as co-captain of this year's track squad, Wilson completed his track career holding school records in three events.

As a sophomore, Wilson participated on the Spanish scholarship team. He is a member of the Second Baptist Church and is involved with the church choir. Wilson is a senior patrol leader in the Boy Scouts, participated in the Boy Scouts' conservation program, served as a board member for Community Action and served two years as a representative for all county students in Neighborhood Youth Corps Program.

With the Junior Naval ROTC, he has helped decorate the court house with Christmas lights, participated in ceremonial parades, Christmas, Memorial and Veteran's Day parades in our community, as well as in Morrow, Chillicothe and South Solon. Epsilon Sigma Alpha selected him as

Inmate lobotomy draws protests

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP)—Prison officials are fielding protests over the lobotomy ordered for an inmate who spent more than seven years in isolation and went blind before his release after 33 years behind bars.

But Warden Ed Pogue of the Nevada State Prison said Monday the treatment given Eugene Austin, now in a convalescent home, is no longer in use, as many of the objectors believe.

Pogue said one person wrote "What kind of animal are you?" Then the warden added, "We had been concerned about Austin, too. We had been trying for a couple of years to get him released."

Austin, 51, was sentenced to life in prison in 1941 at age 18 for killing a woman during a shooting spree.

Records show he was constantly involved in fights with both inmates and prison guards and underwent a prefrontal lobotomy in 1953 in an effort to control his violence. Prison officials said the surgery was completed with Austin's acquiescence.

By the time he was released May 28, Austin had spent more time in the state prison than any other inmate. More than seven years of that time was in a darkened isolation cell.

Austin's blindness was brought on by the time spent in isolation and by injuries suffered in prison brawls, officials have said.

"He was rough. He was the strongest man I have ever seen," said Art Bernard, the warden when surgeons performed the lobotomy that left Austin subdued and docile.

Asked whether he had any reservations about the medical decision to give Austin a lobotomy, Bernard replied, "None at all. It was done in his best interests."

Pogue said he has received about eight letters and 10 phone calls from "people expressing concern as to why Austin was here so long and why he had a prefrontal lobotomy...."

He said it was unfortunate that Austin received a lobotomy, "but that was the state of things at the time. Mental hospitals and prisons were using them. This was an acceptable thing at the time it occurred."

Judge killed by bomb blast; authorities seek motive

PASCO, Wash. (AP) — Court administrator Jim Boldt says he knows of no controversial cases handled by a judge who was killed when a mailed package he was opening exploded in his office.

The blast killed Superior Court Judge James J. Lawless, 50, late Monday.

Officials here said they did not know why the judge was the target. He had served on the bench for 17 years.

Police would not say whether they suspected any connection between the blast and the bombing of a police car and a deliberately set fire in mid-April in the Prosser area 35 miles from here.

But Acting Mayor Donald Linton said, "It was probably just a fluke that it didn't happen in Prosser. It was apparently aimed at the judge and not the community."

The package had been addressed to the judge at his Prosser office. Lawless, who lived here, held court in Pasco and Prosser.

Bob Gregory, a postal official, said the package was delivered to the courthouse in Prosser Monday morning and then was taken back to Pasco by Mrs. Maxine Hancock, a court reporter.

Prosser Postmaster Frank Suhadolnik said the package was wrapped in an old paper bag and measured about three inches wide, three inches thick and six inches long. Mrs. Hancock said she had a strange feeling about the package after she left it with the judge minutes before it exploded.

She had just returned to her office when she heard the blast. "I was sure it must have had something to do with the package," she said. "I don't know why I felt that, but I took off for his office."

Police said they were placing the district's two other judges under protection.

Lawless is survived by his widow, Beth, and five children.

8 states hold primary elections today

By The Associated Press
The primary election for nominees seeking to replace Ronald Reagan as governor and a stern campaign reform measure focused election attention today on California, one of eight states holding primaries.

In the featured contest on the longest ballot in California history, 18 Democrats and six Republicans sought their party nominations to succeed Reagan, the GOP governor who has dominated California politics the past eight years. Reagan is not seeking reelection.

Other primaries are being held in Alabama, Iowa, Mississippi, Montana, New Jersey, New Mexico and South Dakota.

In California, opinion polls say the front-runner for the GOP nomination is state Controller Houston I. Flournoy, 44, an Ivy League-educated political scientist and former college professor.

Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke also is seeking the nomination despite perjury indictments brought against him by Watergate prosecutors. Reinecke, once favored for the GOP nomination, was indicted for testimony regarding International Telephone and Telegraph.

Leading Democratic candidate is Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr., 36, son of the former governor defeated by Reagan in 1966.

Also on the ballot is Proposition 9, a 22,000-word long measure put before the voters by petition and sponsored by Common Cause as a model for national reform controlling campaign fundraising, spending and lobbyists' activities.

In other states:

ALABAMA — Gov. George C. Wallace is remaining neutral in a runoff election for lieutenant governor, where Lt. Gov. Jere Beasley faces millionaire businessman Charles Woods.

IOWA — Harold E. Hughes is vacating his seat in the U.S. Senate. U.S. Rep. John C. Culver is unopposed for the Democratic nomination for Hughes' seat while a state senator and a state representative are seeking the GOP nomination. Republican Gov. Robert D. Ray is unopposed in his party. Three Democrats seek nomination to oppose him in November.

MISSISSIPPI — Nominations for three congressional seats and numerous local offices are at stake today. The congressional campaigns drew little interest and were overshadowed in some areas by the judicial races.

MONTANA — The state's two congressmen are unopposed within their parties but there are primaries to elect opponents for the general election.

NEW JERSEY — The primary campaigns to pick major party candidates for 15 congressional seats attracted an unusually large field of candidates but stirred little voter interest. No incumbent seeking renomination anticipated serious problems.

NEW MEXICO — Four Republicans and six Democrats are seeking nominations for the governorship being vacated by Democrat Bruce King, who cannot succeed himself.

SOUTH DAKOTA — The gubernatorial primary pits Gov. Richard Kneip against his former running mate, Lt. Gov. William Dougherty. Three Republicans are seeking to run against Sen. George McGovern, who is unopposed. One is Leo Thorness, a former Vietnam prisoner of war.

Deaths, Funerals

Mrs. William Barney

Two survivors listed as sons in the obituary of Mrs. Sinda E. Barney, 63, wife of William Barney, 4537 White Rd., SE, are stepsons. They are William R. Barney of Columbus, and Orle A. Barney, 4509 White Rd., SE. Mrs. Barney died Sunday. Services will be at 2 p.m. Thursday in the Murray Funeral Home, Greenfield, with the Rev. Robert Kline officiating. Burial will be in Greenfield Cemetery.

CHRISTOPHER M. FOSTER—Private services for Christopher M. Foster, one-year-old son of Ray M. and Luana Berry Foster, 901 Washington Ave., were held at 1:30 p.m. Monday in the Gerstner-Kinzer Funeral Home with the Rev. Charles Richmond officiating. Christopher died Saturday in the Wright-Patterson Air Force Base Hospital, Dayton. Pallbearers for burial in the Bloomington Cemetery were Pat Dawson, Bill Noel, Ray Killbarger and Gary Foster.

New Lockheed chief to push diversification

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — G. William Miller, who would take the controls at Lockheed Aircraft under a massive refinancing plan, says he forges the nation's largest defense contractor moving into nongovernmental areas in the next decade.

Miller, 49, is board chairman at Textron Inc., a Rhode Island-based conglomerate with products ranging from zippers to missiles.

It offers to bring in $85 million in new capital in exchange for 45 per cent of the debt-ridden aerospace firm under the tentative plan announced here Monday.

"Basically, it's a simple plan. Remove the impediments—cut (Lockheed) loose to fly," said Miller, who would replace Lockheed board chairman Daniel J. Haughton this fall.

Lockheed now has a balance of U.S. government, foreign government and commercial projects, but during the next decade, Miller said he would "expect to see more offshore drilling for oil and we'll be moving farther out to sea. I think we can use Lockheed's tremendous knowledge of satellites" as exploration tools, said Miller, who was graduated from the Coast Guard academy in 1945 with a marine engineering degree.

Problems with Lockheed's TriStar jumbo jets have to be solved first, though.

About 300 of the L1011 jetliners must be sold before the company can break even. Orders to date total 262 and 27 of them are tentative, company officials say.

But Miller is optimistic. Textron, which Miller has headed since 1960, has 30 divisions while Lockheed has only five. "Lockheed isn't really all that big and complicated," he said. "We're talking about a company with $2.7 billion in sales. Compare that to General Motors with $30 billion in sales."

Textron has total assets of $1.3 billion and showed a profit of $100.5 million after taxes last year.

It is the largest producer of helicopters—Bell—in the world, and Miller said its experience in the technological and aerospace field makes it a good choice for the plan.

Lockheed, which has been battling for its corporate life for three years, has been propped up with government loans and its debt totals more than $850 million.

Agnew to pay $1,100 settlement on $175,000 bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Washington Post reported today that Spiro T. Agnew has agreed to pay the government $1,100 in settlement for $175,000 in improvements made to his Kenwood, Md., home while he was vice president.

The newspaper said Agnew and General Services Administrator Arthur W. Sampson signed an agreement April 12 under which the former vice president pledged to pay $700 for air-conditioning and $400 for carpeting in the home.

Agnew bought the suburban home early last year for $190,000. He recently sold it for a reported, $300,000.

Ohio assemblymen face heavy floor agendas today

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Both houses of the Ohio Legislature faced heavy floor agendas today as leaders and committees sought to decide if there will be a supplemental appropriations bill.

The House scheduled floor sessions at 11 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. while the Senate, which met Monday in an unusual night floor session, planned to convene at 1:30 p.m.

House members faced a calendar of 13 bills, including a pair designed to increase the benefits of retired public employees. Senators planned to deal with legislation aimed at increasing the taxing powers of regional transit authorities.

Chairman Max H. Dennis, R-10 Wilmington, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said he would place supplemental spending proposals into a subcommittee to see if differences can be worked out between the outstanding youth and he was presented the school's outstanding athlete award as a freshman.

WILSON'S school activities include being a four-year student council member, vice president of Letterman's Club, three-year member of AFS, three-year member of NROTC, ROTC brigade commander, outstanding second and third year cadet in ROTC, two-year member of the ROTC rifle team, a member of the Society of Outstanding American High School Students and a two-year participant in the SCOL Olympics.

Accomplishments of each of the seven candidates were carefully screened by a selection committee last month. Chairman of the eight-man panel is John Breiner and other permanent members are Kenneth Payton, Laurence Dumford, Father Richard J. Connelly, Max Lawrence, Russell Hatfield, Kenneth Craig and George Kuhlwein.

Coaches who attended to formally place their candidates in nomination at the banquet were Maurice Pfeifer and Richard Roth of Washington Senior High School; and Dave Pellor, Dale Creamer, Fred Zechman and Richard Hill of Miami Trace.

Past Christmas Award winners were Gifford in 1973, Bill Junk, 1972; Jeff Blake, 1971; Tom Gifford, 1970; and Don Bennett in 1969. The award is co-sponsored by the Kiwanis Club and the Record-Herald.

Mainly About People

Steve Hill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andy L. Hill, 1318 Nelson Place, has been named to the Dean's List at Kentucky Christian College, Grayson, Ky., with a final average of 3.00 (all A's). A sophomore at K.C.C., he was also elected to serve as secretary of the 1974-75 Kentucky Christian College Ministerial Association, an organization of all male students at K.C.C.

Kenneth W. Amsbary, 403 N. North St., received a master's degree in educational administration from Xavier University, Cincinnati, on Thursday. Amsbary, principal of Midway Elementary School at Sedalia, is a board director of the Washington C.H. Kiwanis Club. His wife, Chris, his parents Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Amsbary, and his brother Dr. Gordon Amsbary, all of Gallipolis, and a brother and sister-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Harry Amsbary of Pittsburgh, Pa., attended the graduation exercises.

Hog-corn ratio poor for farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government indicator called the hog-corn ratio slipped last month to the lowest level 18 years, a sign that pork producers continue to be in financial trouble because of high feed prices and relatively low returns for market animals.

The May 15 ratio was 10.7, down from 12.7 in April and 21.9 a year earlier. That is the number of bushels of corn approximately equal in value to 100 pounds of liveweight hog sold by farmers.

According to Agriculture Department records, the May indicator was the lowest since it sank to 10.7 in July 1956. Further, it was the lowest ratio for May since 1948.

Although the squeeze of feed prices and market value of hogs is not news to producers caught in it, the figure itself explains much of the reason why hog output has not increased the past year as government experts once expected.

The May price report, released last Friday, showed hog prices nationally averaged $28.30 per 100 pounds, down from $30.60 in April. A year earlier in May 1973 $35.30 per hundredweight.

But corn sold at the farm a year ago for $1.61 per bushel which represented then a pickup in price from a few months earlier when the 1972 crop was being harvested. Last month, according to USDA, farmers nationally were able to sell corn for $2.45 per bushel.

Department experts, although recognizing the current crunch on hog producers, believe their market prices will improve this summer and next fall.

Law enforcement officers probe various offenses

A burglary of a Palmer Road man's residence netted thieves all kinds of miscellaneous merchandise, counterfeit money was passed in Fayette County and the larceny of a mailbox occurred Friday night, the Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported. City Police are investigating a break-in at Washington Junior High School, an incident of vandalism at Cor-Tec Inc., a bad check passed at Krogers and a dog bite.

Sometime between Saturday and Monday, the Roy Carr residence, Palmer Road, was burglarized.

The Carr household was entered through an unlocked door and an antique wash stand was removed. Then locks on two out buildings were pried open and two more wash stands, a library table, a model-T engine and transmission, a car battery and a radiator were taken.

The auto parts were taken from a 1950 Plymouth owned by Dick and David Carr.

Sheriff's deputies are investigating the theft.

Two counterfeit 20-dollar bills were passed at the Fayette County Bank in Jeffersonville, at 1 p.m. Thursday.

Fayette County Sheriff Don Thompson, reported one of the bills is believed to have been originally passed in the U.S. 35 and I-71 business district.

A mailbox valued at $15 owned by Jessie Hall, Parrett-Station Road, was stolen from its support post sometime Friday night, Sheriff's deputies reported.

Washington Junior High School, 318 N. North St., was broken into sometime between 11 p.m. Friday and 8 a.m. Monday, City Police reported.

Two officers were entered and a total of $140 worth of money and articles were taken consisting of: $60 in cash, one polaroid camera, one battery-powered desk lamp, one fish-shaped knife, a cherry-wood bucket and $4 in coins.

Police investigating the incident reported no forced sign of entry and a master key turned into the city swimming pool, Sunday, by an unidentified person.

A knife was used to cut up some wall covering in the east portion of the Cor-Tec Inc., building, which is presently under construction at 2351 Kenskill Ave.

Police reported the incident occurred sometime between 4:45 p.m. Friday and 8 a.m. Monday. Investigation is continuing.

A bad check for $60 was passed at Krogers, 238 S. Main St., sometime in May, police reported.

Beulah Henry, 507 Comfort Lane, was bitten by a dog Monday at noon, at her residence. She was taken to Fayette Memorial Hospital where she was treated for the injury sustained to her hand and released.

FINISHING TOUCHES are now being put on plans for the 50th anniversary reunion of the Washington High School class of 1924. . . All but three of the living members of class of 62 have been located. . . They have been sent letters telling them the reunion will be held June 22 at Lafayette Inn. . . Thirty have acknowledged the invitation. . . Right now planning committee members, Miss Verna Williams and Miss Lida Grace Wisler, are anxious to get the addresses of the three members not yet located. . . They said they are hoping that anyone knowing the whereabouts of Katherine (Barnes) Painter, Marjory Hayworth and Matilda Stevenson will get in touch with the committee. . . Duane Neal, who was the class president, now lives in Dayton but is lending a helping hand to the committee.

IT'S TIME to give blood again! . . . The Fayette County Blood Bank is asking for donors to help replenish the still deficient stock.

This blood bank will be sponsored by the Beta Omega chapter of the Epsilon Sigma Alpha Sorority, at Grace Methodist Church, corner of North and Market streets, from 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. Thursday.

There are now four hospitals in Columbus doing open heart surgery. . . Eight surgeries have been scheduled this week. . . They will require 108 pints of blood.

In addition to what is in the Columbus blood bank, seven pints of 0 negative, four pints of AB positive and 20 pints of 0 positive blood are needed.

All eight patients are from the central Ohio area, and residents with these blood types are especially urged to donate.

Welcome Wagon will be on hand to entertain the kiddies and a free meal will be served all donors.

Appointments are requested, but not required.

Stock list posts gain

NEW YORK (AP) — Visions of declining interest rates inspired another broad advance in the stock market today.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 8.14 at 829.40 on top of a 19.09-point surge Monday. Gainers swamped losers by t-to-1 in active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said the strong rally was touched off by prime-rate cuts posted Monday by banks in Chicago and St. Louis. They added, however, that it appeared the rally would need further signs of a downturn in money rates to continue much longer.

Tandy Corp. was the NYSE's most-active stock, down 3/4 at 23 1/2. A 134,400-share block of the issue changed hands at 23.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index climbed .91 to 82.95.

The Amex' most heavily traded issue was Syntex, down 1/4 at 46.

The Big Board's composite index of some 1,500 common stocks was .48 higher at 44.29.

More warm, sunny weather has been forecast for the Buckeye State.

A high pressure area that has dominated the state's weather since the weekend shows no immediate sign of leaving, weathermen said today.

Sunny skies and warm, humid weather have been forecast over the state through Saturday with only a slight chance of rain.

Highs in the 80s and lows in the 60s have been forecast for the period.

Highs Monday ranged from 70 at Burke Lakefront Airport in downtown Cleveland to 84 in the Cincinnati area. Lows at dawn today were in the 50s.

Fair, warm and humid Thursday through Saturday. Highs in the 80s. Lows in the 60s.

Man questioned in knife slaying

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A 55-year-old west end man was held for questioning Monday night after an elderly lady was discovered dead with a butcher knife in her back.

Police said Miss Mattie Broadus, 73, was found early Monday morning in the bedroom of her apartment. Her hands were tied behind her back with an appliance cord.

Lt. Dan Cash, homicide squad commander, said the victim had apparently been dead for several days.

President plans Middle East trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon will tour five Middle East countries June 12-18 "to consolidate what has been achieved on the road to peace," the White House said today.

Simultaneous announcements were made by the White House and each of the five Middle East governments involved in Nixon's plans for the most extensive tour of the region ever undertaken by a U.S. president.

A White House spokesman said Nixon would depart Monday morning for Salzburg, Austria, where he will spend two nights before heading to the Middle East.

Nixon's Middle East itinerary: June 12-14, Egypt; June 14-15, Saudi Arabia; June 15-16, Syria; June 16-17, Israel; and June 17-18, Jordan.

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren, who made the White House announcement, said the President will be accompanied by Mrs. Nixon and by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, whose successful negotiation of an Israeli-Syria disengagement agreement last week cleared the way for the journey.

Administration sources said the trip is intended also to underscore administration belief that Nixon remains a world leader despite impeachment moves at home.

Health department offers TB testing

A food handler's permit is no longer required for those persons employed in the food industry, Dr. William Covert, the county health commissioner announced. There are three exceptions, however — school, nursing home and hospital personnel.

The previous almost blanket requirement has been relaxed at the direction of the Ohio Department of Health and the Ohio Health Council, Dr. Covert explained, adding that "There also are a few food industries and restaurants, whose policy or interstate distribution of food requires a food handlers permit."

For those persons whose employer requests a food handler's permit, tuberculin skin tests will be given at the Fayette County Health Department on the first Friday (8:30 until 11:30 a.m.) of each month. Arrangements also can be made by employers for industry-wide skin testing, Dr. Covert said.

For those who have a positive reaction to the tuberculin skin test, a new policy has been instituted by the county Health Department on recommendation of the Ohio Health Department and Ohio Public Health Council. The mobile unit is no longer available for the annual chest X-rays as in the past. Now, Dr. Covert declared, the recommendation for positive tuberculin test reactors is to take the medication Isoniazid (INH) for one year. This can be supplied at no cost by the county Health Department on order of the person's private physician, Dr. Covert explained. He said letters will be mailed in the near future to all positive reactors to the skin test known to the Health Department to explain the new policy.

After many years of use as a prophylactic drug against tuberculosis, Isoniazid (INH), has been found to greatly lessen the possibility of future breakdown into active tuberculosis in those positive reactors, Dr. Covert pointed out.

Anyone wanting a tuberculin skin test for their own personal use may go to the Health Department the first Friday morning of each month, or call and make other arrangements.

IRA says British guilty of murder

LONDON (AP) — The Irish Republican Army charged the British government with "callous, brutal and premeditated murder" today after an IRA member on a hunger strike in a British prison died.

Convicted bank robber Michael Gaughan, 24, died Monday night in the top-security Parkhurst Prison on the Isle of Wight after developing pneumonia. He had been fasting since March 31, demanding political prisoner status and transfer to a prison in Northern Ireland.

Gaughan was the first hunger striker to die in Britain since Terence McSwiney, the lord mayor of Cork and an Irish republican leader, in 1920.

Security forces in Northern Ireland braced for new trouble after Gaughan's death but an army spokesman reported no immediate incidents in retaliation. An unidentified man was found shot to death on a roadside on the edge of Belfast, but officials said he apparently had been assassinated by sectarian guerrillas. He was the 1,028th confirmed fatality in nearly five years of the religious war in Ulster.

The Irish Political Hostages Committee said Gaughan would be buried "with full IRA military honors" and demanded an immediate inquiry into the "murder."

Gaughan was sentenced to seven years in prison in 1971 for a London bank robbery to raise funds for the Irish republican cause. His younger brother John said Michael's weight dropped from 168 to 70 pounds and "he looked like something out of Belsen (the Nazi concentration camp). His face simply had no flesh left. I saw him a week ago and I knew then he would die if he was not sent back to Ireland."

The Home Office said Gaughan had been fed artificially since April 22 "whenever medical officers considered it safe to do so."

At least four other Irish prisoners in British prisons are on hunger strikes demanding classification as political prisoners and transfer to prisons in Northern Ireland.

Crime control funds awarded

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—State and federal crime control funds totaling $631,000 have been awarded Ohio law enforcement agencies, Gov. John Gilligan announced Monday.

The Stark County Council of Governments received the largest grant, $161,000 for an adult community treatment center.

Other major grants: $90,000 to the Ohio Youth Commission to improve records processing; $21,976 to the Ohio Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation for implementing statutes concerning the mentally ill offender, and $20,000 to the state Department of Rehabilitation and Correction to fund the planning of facilities and programs.

16 compete in tractor rodeo

Sixteen contestants competed in the 1974 4-H Tractor Rodeo held Sunday at the Fayette County Fairgrounds. The winner of the event was David Duff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Suff, Washington-Waterloo Rd., who was assessed only 900 penalty points.

Runner-up honors went to Dick Davis, Matthews Road, with a score of 1085 points. Third and fourth places went to Doug Welsh, Ohio 38-N, and Bret Taylor, 5832 Prairie Road, with scores of 1115 and 1200, respectively. The rodeo tested the skills of 4-H Tractor Club members in tractor operation, safety and maintenance.

Scoring was done in four parts on a penalty point basis. First, each contestant took a written exam testing his knowledge of tractor safety and mechanics. Second, the contestants tested their skills in moving a 2-wheel trailer through an obstacle course, and third, the boys tackled the 4-wheel trailer backing event. In the final event, each contestant performed a troubleshooting exercise for maintenance problems.

The 2-wheel and 4-wheel events were scored on time to complete the test, skill in safe operation, and ability to stay within the bounds of the course. A maximum time of six minutes was allowed for each event.

Other 4-Hers participating in the Tractor Rodeo were Chris Schlichter, Kevin Cory, Rick Welsh, Kelley Smith, J. T. Perrill, Mark Johnson, Mike Miller, Duane Matthews, Bart Taylor, Rand Beekman, Jay Fannin and Jeff Schlichter. 4-H Tractor Club Advisors Joe Geelsing, John Hiser, Lowell Woods and Jack Sommers, County 4-H Agent set up the course and scored the events.

Tractors and equipment were provided by Case Power & Equipment and Jeffersonville Farm Service.

Awards for the winners were provided by Case Power & Equipment Co., Krieger Equipment Inc., and Lowell Woods.

From

WILLIAM H. HARSHA
6th District, Ohio

There is, and will continue to be a serious fertilizer shortage in this nation. And nobody has to convince anybody else that there is a great deal of difficulty and high interest rates involved in obtaining a loan in this country today.

Apparently that doesn't seem to bother the federal government too much. The Department of Agriculture is admittedly unable to help the farmers who are facing financial ruin because either they can't get enough fertilizer for their crops or when they can buy it, the prices are exorbitant. Neither is there any end in sight for the plight of American borrowers who will have to go through a lot of hand wringing and pay high interest rates for their loans for business, housing or whatever. But the Russians won't, however, when they extend their palms for U.S. money.

They were just given the clearance from the Export-Import Bank—a government gunded agency, mind you—for a $180 million low interest loan to build, of all things, a multi million dollar fertilizer complex in the Soviet Union. This is the largest, and as far as I am concerned, the most outrageous American loan of its type to the Soviets in our history.

Right now, U.S. banks are loaning money to their best American commercial customers at a whopping 11.5 percent or more. That is almost twice as much as the Russians will be paying. The six percent interest charged to them is a figure American borrowers haven't seen in a long time.

Nor will the Russians have to worry about paying back any of the millions of dollars from commercial banks and the Eximbank for five years. Besides the $180 million from the Eximbank, the Russians are also borrowing the same amount from U.S. commercial banks and are only putting $40 million down of their own money for the $400 million project. Then, the Russians will have twelve years to make payments in which the commercial banks, of course, are to be repaid first and the taxpayers last. No American borrower would be allowed to delay his payments five months, let alone five years, nor would Uncle Sam give any such preferential treatment to any taxpayer who wanted to postpone paying his yearly assessment.

There is another more serious factor to be considered which could have a critical impact on our agriculture industry. Today, the U.S. produces only 40 per cent of its fertilizer needs. With the point sorely driven home about the lack of American independence in energy resources during the recent oil embargo (which the Russians supported), it seems very risky to pump millions of dollars into such a questionable ally's efforts to become a major world supplier of fertilizer. There is certainly no assurance Americans will get any preferential treatment when we import Russian fertilizer when the product is available five years hence. And who is going to make the Russians pay the loan if they suddenly decide they don't have to? Nothing in the history of the U.S.S.R. suggests that they might do otherwise.

Once again, it appears the American taxpayer has staked another country's raid on the U.S. Treasury in what is becoming a "checkbook detente". I oppose this as vigorously as I have opposed every other form of foreign aid. We needed that fertilizer plant here in the United States. We needed that money here at home for our own problems. Instead, we just bought more of them from the Soviet Union. The greatest single cause of inflation is government spending and unless the Congress controls some of this irresponsible spending, we never will resolve the serious problem of inflation.

Church hosts organ recital

Grace United Methodist Church will host an organ recital at 8 p.m. Saturday.

Raymond H. Chenault, concert organist, will present a program of church and classical music to which the public is cordially invited.

Chenault will graduate in August with a Master's degree in organ performance from the College Conservatory of Music of the University of Cincinnati. He has presented concerts throughout the eastern United States and in Belgium.

His most recent recital was at Grace Cathedral, San Francisco, Calif., and his is scheduled for recitals in Atlanta, Ga., Washington D.C., and Richmond, Va., in the near future.

Bottle on the beach

Figure the chances that a message in a bottle tossed into the sea by a young American seaman would be picked up on the beach by the president of the United States. A million to one? A hundred million to one? The fact that it did happen is fascinating enough no matter what the odds were.

Seaman Larry Metivier, aboard the USS Guam, wrote the name and address of his grandparents and said to the unknown someone who would find his bottle: "Tell them you found this message from their grandson." Well, the unknown someone did just that: Mr. Nixon phoned the grandparents and read the message. The odds on its happening that way? We wouldn't even venture a guess.

WASHINGTON CALLING . . . by Marquis Childs

this justice?

WASHINGTON — As has been said in space, before the chances are more than that President Nixon and his principal confederates will get off free.

As an unprecedented defiance of the subjecting the system of justice to a tolerable strain, the White House will go free in the courts and the president may escape the ultimate penalty of impeachment.

WHAT EMERGES looks very much like a mutual protective society. The principals under indictment in the Watergate break-in are calling for White House tapes essential for their defense.

The tapes are refused. Since the relevant evidence is not available, the charges against them must be dismissed. Judge Gerhard Gesell put it in forthright language when he refused to know whether the president was aware that he was covering the case by refusing to hand over the evidence.

The same thing will happen when the principals indicted on March 1 will go to trial. The tapes will be withheld by the President. The case will be dismissed and Mitchell, Feltman, Haldeman & Co. will go free.

They will have performed their part of the bargain by concealing what they knew about the President's complicity in the Watergate and related scandals. It is impossible to exaggerate the damage this will do to the system of justice and law. However much the dates of conversations, with the tapes inordinately drawn out, the system will not be lost. It will be written over by ever-increasing cynicism and contempt of the system and contempt for the Nixon rhetoric of law and order.

The little people, the marginal people, the Jeb Magruder, the Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Egil Kroghs, go to jail. The big fish swim out of the net through holes their clever lawyers find for their escape.

This was the reaction of cynicism and disillusion when former Vice President Spiro Agnew was let off with a legal technicality on the court listing 38 crimes of bribery and corruption.

Consider whether just this same outcome may result if and when the president stands on trial before the bar of the Senate. His enormously clever and resourceful lawyer James St. Clair will argue that while a bill of impeachment was voted by the House of Representatives it was not unwritten by the relevant evidence. As in the courts, the House Judiciary Committee will have been refused the tapes sought to establish guilt or innocence.

Senators wanting to find a reason to vote for Nixon's acquittal will be able to fasten on this legalism justifying confidentiality, executive privilege and the rest of the rigamarole of concealment.

SUCH A defense by a President defying every canon of the law will be even more a farce than, as Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski suggested, is the White House stonewalling in the courts. But it requires only 34 plus one to acquit and, fantastic as it seems at this moment, it may be the escape hatch.

In all this is a terrible historic irony. It comes against the background of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's valiant efforts to bring peace to the Middle East. That tireless effort promises to succeed.

The reward for President Nixon will be a tour of Middle East capitals, meaning a television spectacular at the time when the test in the courts occurs. The distracting effect hardly needs to be underscored.

It comes when the detente with the Soviet Union and the possibility of a further breakthrough in curbing the nuclear arms race is at a critical point. Except for die-hard cold war warriors and those with a political axe to grind, no one can want this to fail. These are some of the enormous credits of the Nixon-Kissinger foreign policy. But can they be built on a structure in such fearful disarray and disorder? We shall know in the weeks ahead whether the foreign policy initiatives can have what will be in effect an independent life of their own.

GEMINI

(May 22 to June 21)

Let others "be themselves." The Gemini is usually a most tolerant individual, never trying to dominate others, but such inclinations prevail now.

CANCER

(June 22 to July 23)

A brand new financial start indicated — accompanied by high hopes, which CAN be realized. You MUST take the initiative, however — and confidently.

LEO

(July 24 to Aug. 23)

You may be concerned about the "whys and wherefores" of certain events. Insight IS available, but you'll need the help of a close associate to attain it.

VIRGO

(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Creative interests stimulated. Your ideas are not only inspirational but highly feasible. Also favored: romance and family concerns.

LIBRA

(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Some requests may annoy, but think them over carefully. Compliance COULD prove profitable in the long run — and bring you satisfaction as well.

SCORPIO

(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

By interpreting situations arbitrarily, you may miss intended meanings. Do not hesitate to call in clever associates for better understanding. Day needs collaboration, teamwork.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Your competition will be keen now, but the challenge should prove stimulating. A good chance to display your ingenuity and know-how.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Day calls for your steadiest heart and hand. Don't try to swim against the tide and don't try to force issues.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

A day which you can mold pretty much to your liking. Take a firm and knowing hand early and plan your schedule smartly. Make no snap decisions, however.

PISCES

(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Self-reliance should be your keyword now. Don't let others do your thinking for you. Neither let anyone sway you from a worthwhile course.

YOU BORN TODAY are extremely imaginative and, in all your undertakings, combine the artistic with the practical. Your interests in life are almost limitless, but it is in your absorption with people that you find your greatest stimulation. Try to cultivate this trait since you are also inclined to be too introspective at times and outside contacts "take you out of yourself." Your versatility is outstanding and you could run a business or work project shrewdly while simultaneously pursuing an avocation such as writing, drawing or music. You are ready to travel on short notice and will labor tirelessly if the project in which you are engaged interests you. If not interested, you tend to scatter energies with resultant tensions and anxieties. There is no set boundary for the Gemini. He broadens his horizons every day of his life.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR RECORD-HERALD:

With your permission, I would like to discuss — very briefly and quite generally — the subject of taxes.

The average American in the year 1974 will have to work two hours and 38 minutes of every eight-hour work day to pay the taxes imposed on him by the federal, state and local governments.

Now, we all realize it takes much money to operate the various levels of local government. I think we also realize (if not now, we will in the near future) that the cost of government has escalated beyond all reason and threatens to collapse our entire system. This is primarily due to two causes: (a) astronomical increase in so-called government services, many of which we'd be better off without, and (b) attendant with this, the astronomical increase in governmental bureaus and bureaucrats, a great many of whom are purely parasitic in nature.

In Ohio alone last year, $19,670,700,000 in taxes were collected by federal, state and local governments. This amount to $1,850 for every man, woman and child in Ohio. To get an idea of the enormity of the figure — if one were to count $100 bills at the rate of one per second, it would take 26 years and three months to count one year's "take" if one worked eight hours a day and five days a week. No vacations. No one would want to enter upon such a project, because no sooner would you get the 1973 taxes counted than you would have had a 25-year backlog accumulated. Most frustrating.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Granddaughter needs grandma's help—now

DEAR ABBY: My 16-year-old granddaughter is pregnant. The boy is a high school kid with no way of supporting himself, let alone a wife and child, so marriage is out of the question. His folks have thrown him out, and a neighbor has taken him in. My son and daughter-in-law are going to see their daughter through this, and they're keeping the baby.

My problem: How should a 75-year-old grandmother act? Should I act like nothing out of the ordinary has happened, and accept the baby as a legitimate great-grandchild? Or should I show my contempt and disgust and turn away? I guess I was born 75 years too soon because I don't seem able to accept this situation.

So far, I've managed to keep my mouth shut, but I'll have to take a stand soon. I've always had a good relationship with my son and his wife and don't want to spoil it now.

Please help me set my thinking straight.

GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: If your family ever needed your compassion and understanding it's now! You can accept the new baby without condoning the unfortunate circumstances. The last thing your granddaughter needs now is a "show of contempt and disgust." (She's suffered enough.)

DEAR ABBY: I'll bet you've never run into a problem like mine: I am being married in a formal church wedding. My fiancé and I have known each other for two years, and the only name I've ever known him by is "Beaver." His parents have called him "Beaver" ever since they brought him home from the hospital, and everyone has called him "Beaver" ever since.

His real name is Steven, but hardly anyone knows it. When we say our marriage vows, it will seem so unnatural for me to say: "I, Mona, take thee, Steven," because I've never in my life called him Steven. But I'm afraid it would sound funny if I were to say: "I, Mona, take thee, Beaver!" So, what do you advise?

MONA

DEAR MONA: Say: "I, Mona, take thee, Steven." Nicknames are a no-no in a traditional marriage ceremony.

DEAR ABBY: I don't want to brag, but I would be very good-looking if it weren't for the bags under my eyes. I'm only 27, and I've had these miserable pouches since I was in high school, but they've gotten much more noticeable in the last few years.

I work in a large office and I'm constantly being accused of having been up all night or hung over because I always look so dissipated.

Abby, I get plenty of sleep and I am no big drinker. I'm too young for a face-lift. Can you help me?

BAGGY

DEAR BAGGY: My consultants advise me that the condition you describe is called "Blepharochalasis." It's fairly common, and tends to run in families. (Some children have it.) It's not necessary to have a complete face-lift to get rid of the bags.

JUVENILE COURT

Two Washington C.H. girls, aged 13 and 16, were adjudged delinquent children by Juvenile Court Judge Rollo Marchant after they admitted shoplifting at Seaway. The 13-year-old admitted taking a $7 pair of shoes; the 16-year-old an $8.50 skirt and blouse. Both were placed on probation with Marshall Boggs.

DIVORCE ACTION FILED

Debra J. Stewart, Milledgeville, has filed in Common Pleas Court for divorce from Robert R. Stewart, Copperas, Tex., on grounds of neglect and cruelty. The parties were married here July 13, 1968 and have one child the petition states. The plaintiff is seeking alimony, custody and support.

CIVIL SUIT FILED

A half-million dollar law suit has been filed by Dennis and Elizabeth Daniels, Rt. 1, Jeffersonville, in Common Pleas Court against Knisley Pontiac, 1159 Columbus Ave., and the General Motors Corporation, Cleveland.

According to the plaintiffs claim, the right-rear wheel of a car which they purchased from Knisley Pontiac came loose while Mr. Daniels was driving near Jeffersonville in the spring of 1972. The loose wheel, he claims, caused him to have an accident, doing $2,770.40 damage to the vehicle.

Since that time the plaintiff alleges to have suffered great damages due to the accident, physical injury, hospital bills, and loss of services. The plaintiffs seek $500,000 in addition to the damage to the vehicle, bringing the total to $502,770.40.

DIVORCE ACTIONS DISMISSED

The divorce action filed by Betty J. Campbell, 324 E. Paint St., against Donald J. Campbell, Ohio 41-S, has been dismissed at the request of the plaintiff.

The divorce action filed by Dorothy M. Hamilton, 423 Campbell St., against Lawrence E. Hamilton, Fairport, Ky., was dismissed by the court for lack of prosecution.

CIVIL SUIT DISMISSED

A foreclosure action filed by Fulton and Goss Inc., Cleveland, against Meredith G. Downard, 710 E. Paint St., has been dismissed without prejudice.

Fred Astaire marks 60-year career

By BOB THOMAS

Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP)—“The main thing I want to do is make good. The only way I can be satisfied is if I’m not letting anyone down — either the audience, or my fellow performers, or myself.”

The words may sound like those of a young star of a new television series, but they came from Fred Astaire, who is marking his 68th year in show business at the age of 75. He is back at work, not dancing this time out, but conveying the Astaire grace to the role of a con man in the all-star “The Towering Inferno.”

The eyes have a slight glint, and the face is more sharply angled, but Astaire remains impeccably slim and thoroughly ageless.

Even though he wasn’t working, he came to 20th CenturyFox studio for an interview and to witness the first scene between Paul Newman and Steve McQueen. Astaire was eager to watch

McQueen’s prank of wearing three-inch platform shoes so he would tower over Newman.

“I don’t call myself an actor,” said Astaire with his customary modesty, “but I’ve had some practice at it. I did a few things as a kid; if you’d read my autobiography, you’d know that I played Roxanne to my sister Adele’s Cyrano de Bergerac.”

He recalled some of his non-musicals: “Notorious Landlady,” “On The Beach,” “Midway Run” plus his television work in “It Takes a Thief,” “The Over the Hill Gang” and his Alcoa series — “I took it so I could get training in straight roles.”

Will he dance again? “Not in a full-scale musical film nor the kind of TV special that used to win him a cartload of Emmies.

“That’s not for Mr. 75-year-old Astaire,” he said emphatically. “I did the last special when I was 70 or so, and I had to run a four-minute mile. It’s a helluva strenuous life, the way I do a show. I mean you beat the floor for eight weeks in rehearsal, then you tape it. That’s not for this fellow, not any more.”

Air crash case nixed

WASHINGTON (AP)—A dispute between Trans World Airlines and Delta Air Lines, stemming from a 1967 accident at Greater Cincinnati Airport, was denied a review Monday by the U.S. Supreme Court.

The high court’s refusal let stand a decision by the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in favor of Delta’s indemnity claim against TWA.

George W. Rosenthal, a passenger on the TWA plane, sparked the indemnity claim through damage actions. Rosenthal was injured and his wife killed in the mishap.

Delta settled with Rosenthal after a jury awarded him damages on the basis that Delta’s negligence led to the accident.

The mishap occurred when the TWA plane aborted a takeoff after sighting the Delta plane mired in mud near the runway.

The appeals court found contributory negligence by the TWA crew.

Ohio perspective Egg industry bill progresses

By ROBERT E. MILLER

Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A little heralded bill to protect and to maintain Ohio’s $400 million-a-year egg industry is making its way quietly through the General Assembly.

The measure seeks to exempt machinery and other tangible items used in the handling and packaging of eggs from the state sales tax.

Sponsors claim this could be a life or death matter for poultrymen in Ohio’s small and middle-sized towns.

The bill passed the House and went to the Senate in mid-May.

Rep. Frederick H. Deering, D-84 Monroeville, is the bill’s main sponsor. He introduced the proposal after years of controversy in the courts over whether the industry should pay the tax. It hasn’t until now.

Deering said he decided to offer the bill after a recent decision by the Ohio Supreme Court holding that the egg processors must pay the tax just like manufacturers.

Deering offers impressive statistics to show the importance of Ohio’s egg industry. Sales alone, he said, total about $150 million a year.

Processors, he said, have an annual payroll of about $7 million and with packaging, transportation and other related activities the impact on the state’s economy is about $400 million a year.

Deering said 92 per cent of the Ohio egg industry is situated within 28 miles of the boundaries of neighboring states, which do not impose sales taxes on their industries.

The main purpose of the bill, Deering said, is to grant egg processors in Ohio the same retail sales tax exemption that is granted to their out-of-state competitors.

Veteran Rep. Fred B. Hadley, R-79 Bryan, said the bill is of “vital importance” to the Ohio processors “most of whom operate their businesses in small towns where they are a very important part of their economies.”

In his own corner of northwest Ohio, Hadley mentioned West Unity, Wauseon and Napoleon as among communities with sizeable egg processing industries.

Bonds forfeited in Muny Court

Two men from Mount Sterling and another from Columbus were scheduled to appear in Municipal Court Monday on charges of driving a motor vehicle in parts of the Deer Creek Wildlife Area where such vehicles are prohibited.

Each forfeited $25 bond when his failed to appear.

The defendants were Curtis Harmon and Noah H. Lee, of Mount Sterling, and Thomas N. Piper, Columbus.

All three were cited by Charles Cooper, state game protector.

The longest hunger strike recorded was one of 94 days by nine inmates of Cork Prison, Ireland, from Aug. 11 to Nov. 12, 1920.

“Summer Rates” may mean bigger electric bills for you.

DP&L customers should be aware that electric rates now in effect provide for higher charges in the summer months if usage is above specified levels. This is to recover the additional cost of generating electricity during the summer, including the use of less-efficient generating units needed to meet peak hot weather demands.

Lower rates are in effect in winter when generators can be operated most efficiently.

Summer rates apply to bills issued June through October.

During this period, residential customers who use more than 200 kilowatt hours per month pay more for a given amount of electricity than they do during the remaining seven months of the year.

200 kwh	0
400 kwh	+ $1.40
600 kwh	+ $2.80
1000 kwh	+ $5.85
1500 kwh	+ $9.85

High coal prices hurt, too.

Another factor affecting the size of your electric bill is the rapidly increasing price of coal. Coal is a big item in the cost of supplying electricity. DP&L’s rates, like those of most electric companies, provide for any increase, or decrease, in the cost of fuel to be passed on to customers. At this time, “fuel cost adjustment”—your share of the increased cost of coal—means a sizeable addition to your bill.

We will continue to supply the electricity you need at the lowest price consistent with quality service. We hope you will understand why electric bills are bigger at this time.

Members of the Mary Martha Guild of First Christian Church met Monday evening at the church, when Mrs. Charles Sheridan conducted the meeting. Mrs. Esther Edwards gave devotions on "Why All Should Keep the Sabbath Holy and Reverence in the Sanctuary."

Mrs. Milbourne Flee presented the lesson study taken from the Book of Luke, "Elizabeth, Wife of Zacharias."

Roll call was answered by 13 and cards were signed for the ill. Reports were also heard.

Mrs. Zoe Follis and Mrs. Lucy Sells served refreshments.

Attending the 15th annual Buckeye State Square and Round Dance Convention over the weekend held in the Sheraton-Cleveland Hotel, Cleveland, were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Summers, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Reeves, Mrs. Willard Judy, Mr. and Mrs. John Frazier, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Corner, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Koenig, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Flowers and Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Smith.

French have a way with cheese

By TOM HOGE

AP Newsfeatures Writer Winston Churchill is said to have muttered during one of France's political upheavals that "it must be difficult to agree on a government in a nation that makes more than 300 kinds of cheese."

Be that as it may, the French agreed long ago on one thing; the art of making good cheese.

I have never seen anywhere the total number of cheeses the French are supposed to make, but I'm told there are more than 100 varieties available in cheese shops and specialty stores in the United States alone, from soft-ripened Brie to sturdy Pont l'Eveque.

Centuries ago, some of France's monasteries made a name for themselves as cheese makers. About 100 years back, the Trappist monks, for instance, experimented with bacteria and came up with a creamy creation known as Port du Salut, the name of the region where their abbey was located.

There are far older French cheeses, such as Gruyere, with its delicate, slightly nutty flavor, which was first made in 1288.

Quiche was originally made from bread dough like the Italian pizza, but later it was replaced by pastry. And like pizza today, there is a wide range of Quiche fillings, from the traditional bacon, cream and eggs to calorie-crammed desserts filled with rich custards laced with cognac and topped with whipped cream and fruits.

Here is a slightly different version of the cheese and onion quiche, with ham substituted for bacon.

1 package standard pie crust mix
1 egg slightly beaten
4 oz. Port du Salut shredded
1 tablespoon chopped onion
1/2 cup diced, smoked, cooked ham
3 egg yolks
1 additional whole egg
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon Dijon mustard
Dash cayenne pepper
1 1/4 cups scalded light cream

Prepare pie crust mix according to package directions, substituting 1 whole egg and enough water for amount of liquid specified. Use pastry to line bottom and sides of ungreased 9-inch pan, fluting a high edge. With fork, prick sides and bottom of pie shell, and chill half an hour. Bake in 425-degree oven 15 minutes. Remove and reduce heat to 350 degrees. Combine cheese, onion and ham and sprinkle over bottom of shell. Combine egg yolks and additional whole egg, salt, mustards and cayenne. Beat till blended and beat in scalded cream. Pour over cheese mix. Bake 40-45 minutes or till knife inserted in center of pie comes out clean. Serve hot. Good with a chilled rose wine.

The engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Terry Ann Newland of 625 E. Temple St., to Greg Ellenberger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ellenberger, of Rt. 1, is being announced by her father, Mr. Eldon Newland of Joliet, Ill.

The young couple will be married July 20 in First Christian Church.

Class meets in Bloomer home

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Bloomer entertained the Friendship Circle Class of the Bloomington United Methodist Church. Mr. William Purcell, vice president, conducted the brief business meeting when various reports were made.

Following adjournment, all were invited to the dining room for refreshments. An arrangement of pink peonies centered the table. Ice cream, cookies, mints, nuts and ice tea were served by Mr. and Mrs. Bloomer and Mrs. Lucy Randolph to nine members and one guest, Mrs. Forest Baughn. All reminisced of "old times" during the remainder of the evening.

Youth Activities

Black clouds and a threat of more thundershowers didn't stop the weekend of fun at Tar Hollow for the 15 members of the Happy Trails Riding Club.

Clearing skies Saturday night revived everyone's spirits. In all, about seven hours of riding was enjoyed, and half of the time was spent going up and down the steep trails.

The only minor mishap occurred on Sunday when Jeff Ingram and Flicka got dunked in the icy creek.

The state has done a fine job of providing a nice horseman's camping area. The bridge trails go through a beautiful area and many wild flowers were still in bloom. The fire pinks were especially pretty.

Everyone was filled with good food by Sunday evening, and all are looking forward to the next ride.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT

AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the nation's costliest tree houses, rushed to completion last month in Washington, D.C., hasn't been used since May 20. But don't ask if you can play in it if you come to Washington.

It's reserved exclusively for the two TV cameramen and a lighting director who'll be in it from the day the House Judiciary Committee finally opens its impeachment investigation to the public.

The tree house, so named by ABC officials, cost an estimated $19,000 to put up. It's located on the south side of the massive Rayburn Building, which cost an estimated $150 million to put up.

The cost of erecting the two-story tree house was shared by the three commercial networks and public television, according to spokesmen for ABC, which supervised the construction.

Unlike the Rayburn Building, which

Blaze hits Dennison

DENNISON, Ohio (AP) — Fire early today destroyed a four-story brick building at the abandoned Dennison Sewer Pipe Co. plant.

Officials said it was the latest in a series of fires in abandoned buildings in the area over the past year. A former hotel and two stores have also been destroyed and state investigators said arson was suspected in the earlier blazes.

The sewer pipe company plant had been abandoned for 12 years.

About 30 firemen from the Dennison and Uhrichville departments fought the fire for about an hour before bringing it under control.

Firemen expressed concern for a time that the fire might spread to nearby oil storage tanks.

No injuries were reported.

took nearly three years to finish, the air-conditioned wood tree house was completed in one frantic night three weekends ago, ABC's Bob Siegenthaler says.

Siegenthaler, a senior producer in ABC News' special events department, said the rush job was made necessary because at that time it appeared the public hearings would start May 21.

Has anyone tried to tiptoe to the treehouse for bugging purposes or to eavesdrop on the committee's closed sessions?

"None of our people," laughed Siegenthaler, who said the committee orders periodic checks of the installation and puts a security man on duty during closed sessions to guard against unauthorized ears.

He said the structure was locked shut May 20 after tests of the camera and lighting gear and nobody was allowed to go in again.

17 rescued from blaze

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Two children were rescued from a third floor window and 15 other persons were ushered out of a smoke-filled apartment building late Monday night when a fire of undetermined origin swept through the structure.

Four firemen suffered minor injuries battling the three-alarm blaze in suburban Avondale. Damage was termed extensive.

Cincinnati Fire Chief Bert Lugannani said the fire apparently started in a stairwell. An arson investigation has been requested by Assistant Fire Chief Robert Schinaman, who heads the arson squad.

Approximately 70 persons live in the building, located just west of Xavier University.

Futility of inflation fight seen

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The anchovy, a major source of protein meal for livestock feed, disappeared from the waters off Peru. It forced cattle raisers to depend more on soybeans, which rose in price, forcing up beef prices.

Belatedly recognizing their enormous marketing power, the nations of the Mideast arbitrarily raised their oil prices, thus driving up the prices of countless products whose manufacture depends on energy.

Crop failures developed in the Soviet Union, Australia, China and Southeast Asia, and drought plagued huge portions of Africa. Enormous demands for U.S. grains resulted, and prices for food rose everywhere.

The world's underprivileged nations sought to raise their living standards by introducing greater variety and more protein into their diets. This added to demands on available food supplies. In response, prices rose.

These factors are part of the incredibly complex inflation problem that every American must deal with today. It's not only individual citizens who are appalled by the immensity of the problem; government are too.

What can Washington do about anchovies that change their living habits, perhaps in response to little understood changes in ocean currents? Can it prevent drought or excessive rain? Or keep the underprivileged deprived?

The futility of the inflation battle is found in the statistics gathered by the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, made up of more than 20 of the world's leading trading nations.

They show an annual rate of inflation in Greece of 33.4 per cent through March. In the same period, Portugal and Iceland also had an inflation rate of at least 30 per cent. In Japan, prices rose 24 per cent; in the United States, 10.2.

Assuming that 1970 prices equal 100, the spot price of wool at Sydney, Australia reached an index of 344 in 1973 and is only slightly below that figure now. Caribbean sugar at the Port of New York was at an index of 530 in April.

U.S. wheat at Kansas City reached 242 in 1973 and was 280 in mid-April. Ghana cocoa reached 187 at New York last year and was 345 in mid-April. London zinc leaped to 287 last year and almost doubled that, to 535, in April.

Are there other factors involved in such increases? The OECD maintains that the prices surges are "exacerbated by speculation," by the philosophy of buy now because you'll have to pay more tomorrow.

While recognizing the growing dangers of inflationary imbalances, there isn't one of the world's trading nations that can implement a master plan to protect itself. That, at least, has been the record.

Bowling Green teacher strike comes to end

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP) — Classes were to resume today for Bowling Green's 3,800 public school pupils after teachers voted to accept a 5.3 per cent salary increase and end a two-day strike.

The tentative, one-year agreement would cover all regular school employees and was announced jointly Monday night by the board of education, Bowling Green Teachers Association and the local chapter of the Public School Employees Association.

Some 184 teachers walked off the job Friday. The proposal accepted Monday night was the board's third offer in two days of negotiations.

Evert wins Rome title

ROME (AP) — Winning titles at the Rome tennis open turned out to be child's play. Or at least the work of teen-agers.

Chris Evert, 19, won the women's crown for her first major international triumph and Bjorn Borg, 17-year-old Swedish star, breezed past Ilie Nastase to take the men's title.

Borg was the youngest player ever to win a major tournament.

Miss Evert, from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Borg have both won bigger prize money than in Rome—$16,000 for Borg and $5,000 for Miss Evert—but their performances here were cornerstones in their careers.

Miss Evert beat another teenage star, Martina Navratilova of Czechoslovakia, 6-3, 6-3 in the women's final. Miss Evert was a finalist in Wimbledon, Paris and Rome last year and a semifinalist for three years running at Forest Hills.

She was a finalist in the Australian Open this year.

Miss Evert teamed with Olga Morozova of the Soviet Union to win the women's doubles title as Helga Masthoff and Heide Orth of West Germany defaulted because of injury.

Borg beat the top-seeded Nastase, considered one of the best players in the world, in straight sets 6-3, 6-4, 6-2 in Monday's final.

It took Borg just an hour and a half to upset the Romanian, who won here in 1970 and last year.

Raul Ramirez of Mexico and Brian Gottfried of Fort Lauderdale won the men's doubles defeating Nastase and Juan Gisbert of Spain 6-3, 6-2, 6-3.

The tournament was marred by two controversies.

Jimmy Connors of Belleville, Ill., who shares the No. 1 ranking in the United States, was banned from the tournament because he had played for World Team Tennis in the United States. The dispute over relations with the WTT has led to a feud within the International Lawn Tennis Federation. Many European countries have banned WTT players.

First-place Levi Boys upset by Mustangs

The last-place Mustangs, with a 5-run outburst in the final inning upset the first-place Levi Boys 6-5 last night.

In the other game in the major league the Wheels massacred the Flashes 18-0. The Mustangs got a good pitching performance from Norman Melvin who went the distance. They received a double from Thomas Ellis, the only extra-base hit in the game. Jon Thomas took the loss.

The Wheels also had excellent pitching from William Pressler but the 18-run attack behind him didn't hurt either. They received a home run from Brian Dodds among their fourteen hits. Ty Anderson took the loss for the Flashes.

In minor league action, Roller Haven blasted the Eagles 23-4 and K of C downed the Loafers 12-3. Roller Haven received three triples while their pitching duo of Tim Knisley and Pat Malone limited the Eagles to just two hits.

K of C was backed by two grand slams by Mark Bentley and James Croker while Tim Redman limited the Loafers to just five hits. Robert Smith took the loss.

Scott Martin sparks Willis; Jeff Lions blast Jamestown

Fayette and Jeffersonville Babe Ruth leagues opened Monday night with Willis Insurance pounding Bloomingburg 18-6 in the Fayette League and Jeffersonville Lions blasting Jamestown 20-4 in the Jeffersonville league.

Scott Martin was practically all Willis needed as he went three-for-three, scored 5 runs, blasted a home run, and stole an amazing total of seven

NEW YORK (AP) — Eight months ago, all Pete Rose could hear were insults, threats against his life and the sounds of cans, bottles and other garbage whizzing past his head.

"All I heard tonight was George Foster calling me off the fly balls," the fiery leaders of the Cincinnati Reds said of his fellow outfielder.

And it was Foster who came up smelling like a rose in the Reds' 5-2 victory over the New York Mets Monday night.

The soft-spoken center fielder doubled and singled, scoring one run and driving in one, and made a spectacular throw from left-center field to home plate on the fly, cutting down a baserunner and killing a promising Mets' rally.

Last Oct. 8, in the third game of the National League playoffs, Rose barreled into Mets' shortstop Bud Harrelson, breaking up a double play. The two came up swinging and that match signaled the start of a massive bench-clearing melee.

Monday night's game was the first in New York for the Reds since the playoffs. Rose was the star of the show before the first pitch was ever thrown. The Mets had extra security guards and they kept the left field stands—the ones that had held last season's garbage throwers—empty.

"It was nice," Rose said. "Of course, that's partly because we won. Oh, I heard a few remarks, you know, the stuff like, 'ahh, ya bum, ya.' But let's face it, these are Mets' fans. I hear the same stuff around the rest of the league."

The Reds built a 3-0 lead against Jon Matlack, 5-3, on Foster's double and Andy Kosco's single in the second inning, Dave Concepcion's RBI-double in the third and Johnny Bench's RBI-single in the fourth. Then came the turning-point bottom of the fourth.

Just Leigh winner of Lebanon feature

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — Just Leigh caught the leaders with a blistering stretch drive for a half-length victory in the featured mile pace at Lebanon Raceway Monday night.

Completing the distance in 2:07 4-5, the winner returned $11.80, $8.80 and $3.80.

Bowlers advance

Two teams from Washington C.H. are in the state finals of the Champion of Champions bowling tournament. In the men's regional held at Rainbow Lanes in Portsmouth, Ohio, Boyland and Cannon Electronics placed fourth. The state tourney, which will be held at Kinser Lanes, New Philadelphia, is slated for July 6-7.

Members of the team are Tom Vrettos, Roger Sheppard, Jim Brown, Jim Polk, and Gene Stanforth. They had a total of 3057 pins.

In the women's regional held at Kingpin Lanes in Cambridge, Connie's Coiffuers finished second with 2095 pins. The state finals will be held in Dover on July 6-7. Members of the team are Wanda Willis, Florence Smith, Dora Williamson, Donna Wolfe and Jerri Greene.

West praises Walton, Wilkens

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — "I've read some stories which made it sound as though I was Bill's father," Jerry West said with a grin.

"I know Bill and he's one of the nicest people that I have met involved with basketball..." said the longtime backcourt star for the Los Angeles Lakers.

Bill is Bill Walton, the 6-foot-11 UCLA All-American who has signed a five-year contract with the Portland Trail Blazers of the National Basketball Association.

"What I like about him most as a player," West said of Walton, "is that he's very unselfish. He has always been a winner and that is contagious."

West was in Portland briefly Monday to purchase a foreign car from an auto dealer. In a nearby hospital, Walton was recovering from minor knee surgery.

"Portland has done two very positive things since the end of the season," West said. "One was signing Walton. The other was hiring Lenny Wilkens as coach. Wilkens, I think, has one of the fine basketball minds in the game."

"In this game you can't get dominated in the middle," West continued. "And with Walton, the Blazers won't get dominated in the middle."

West, still referring to Walton, said he thought the Blazers picked up the player "who will make the other players play as a unit ... Portland's big problem," he said, "is to feel it can beat anyone."

"I think Portland will be right there in the Western Division next year," he said.

But, he added that the Lakers are going to be improved, predicting a story shortly to that effect. He acknowledged that he might be referring to Cazzie Russell, who played out his option with Golden State.

West, who has played for the Lakers in all of his 14 NBA seasons, recently signed a multiyear pact with the Lakers which calls for him to play one more season and then work in the front office for five years.

"I hope I'll be able to play this season," said the NBA veteran, who missed most of last year because of assorted ailments.

Softball tournament

Chillicothe's V.A. Hospital diamond will be the site of a women's softball tournament on June 14-16. Entry fee for the tournament is $40 and the drawing will be held June 11. Any manager interested in entering their team may contact Gene Detillion, 411 Gordon Ave., Waverly.

The Mets got a run off Clay Kirby, 4-3, on a walk and singles by Dave Schneck and Jerry Grote, then loaded the bases with two out when Kosco booted Teddy Martinez' grounder to third.

Rose, in left, and Foster converged on the ball. "I could hear Pete yelling, 'home,' Foster said. "When I looked up, Grote was just rounding third. So I really unloaded."

The ball sailed on a line to Bench at home. The catcher had to stretch to catch it, but he was right over the plate. All he had to do was drop his glove. Grote slid right into it.

The Mets had scored a second run but Grote, who would have been the tying one, was out.

"Boy, that was one hell of a throw, wasn't it?" said Rose. "I'll tell you, it really saved the game for us at that point."

And Foster joked: "Wasn't it nice the way I kept the ball in the game, not getting it dirty?"

The Reds added single runs in the fifth on Marv Rettenmund's double and Foster's single and wrapped it up when Rettenmund singled for a run. While public enemy Pete Rose was under heavy surveillance in New York Monday night, Larry Bowe had Carl Morton all stacked out in Philadelphia.

Meanwhile in the only other National League game, Bowe learned something while watching Atlanta pitcher Morton and turned his knowledge into a stolen base that set up the tiebreaking run in the Philadelphia Phillies' 5-2 victory over the Braves.

In the only American League game, the Minnesota Twins edged the Boston Red Sox 5-4 in 12 innings and the Baltimore Orioles nipped the Kansas City Royals 4-3.

Phillies 5, Braves 2
Del Unser squeezed Bowe home from third base with the tie-breaking run in the eighth inning and Willie Montanez followed with a two-run double. Meanwhile, Steve Carlton held the Braves to six hits and struck out 11.

Bowe opened the eighth with a single off Morton and went to second on Greg Luzinski's oneout single. Having run a make on Morton's modus operandi, Bowe then stole third—his 16th consecutive theft and 17th in 18 attempts this season—and beat Morton's desperate throw to the plate on Unser's bunt.

Twins 5, Red Sox 4

Larry Hise singled home the winning run with the bases loaded in the 12th inning and Bill Hands contributed a brilliant relief stint to notch his 100th major league victory.

Orioles 4, Royals 3

Grant Jackson, Baltimore's third pitcher of the seventh inning, choked off a Kansas City rally and preserved Baltimore's victory. Doyle Alexander, making only his third start, entered the inning with a 4-1 lead but was replaced by Bob Reynolds with two on and two out.

Maxflis Wednesday night golf leaders

Maxflis opened a 3 and one-half point lead over the second place Tourneys in the Wednesday Night Golf League as six teams participated in a match at the Washington Country Club.

The Maxflis were defeated despite their first place ranking by the Tilelists 12-11. In other action, the Tourneys took the Top Flites 10-8 and the Blue Maxes nipped the Reds 10-9.

Jim Morrison of the Top Flites carded a 38 score the lowest of the night. Richard Andrews was low scorer for the Reds with a 41, Everett Rudolph carded low score for the Blue Max with a 46, Ralph Tate carded a 44 for the Tilelists, Loren Noble and Herb Bonner scored 45 for the Maxfli and Howard Mann carded a 43 for the Tourneys.

Next Wednesday's action sees the Top Flites meet the Tourneys, the Blue Max take on the Reds and the Tilelists play the Maxflis.

EXAMINE WRECKAGE — Police examine wreckage of Los Angeles police helicopter that crashed in a remote canyon near the Los Angeles suburb of San Fern during a training flight, killing one policeman and seriously injuring three other officers. A letter claiming that the Symbionese Liberation Army used a missile to shoot down the copter was received by station KNXT in Los Angeles.

Fayette Street buildings now undergoing renovation

Two buildings on the west side of Fayette St., between Market Street and the alley to the north, are now in the process of extensive remodeling and redecoration and the third, a small frame residence property between the two, is being torn down to make space for a private parking lot.

The three properties in the half block were purchased from the Roney Auto Parts Co., which acquired them some time ago from Trent Sickles, former owner of the Washington Hotel, by the Lafayette Co., a family corporation comprised of Mr. and Mrs. Richard R. Willis, their three sons, David, Dale and Duke, and their daughter, Mrs. Dawn Freeman, of Salisbury, Md.

One of the city's old landmarks—the almost square two story brick building which stands flush with the sidewalks at the corner of Fayette and Market Sts., was included in the deal. It includes four apartments, one of three rooms, one of two rooms and two single-room "bachelor" apartments and a ground floor two-room office suite. All except the office are rented. A smaller apartment at the rear is now being remodeled. The frame residence building on Fayette St., at the alley, has two apartments, one on the first floor and one on the second, both occupied.

Both properties, Willis said, are in good condition, having been renovated, with much new plumbing and heating equipment installed by Sickles a short time before he sold them. About all that remains to be done is the painting and minor repairs on the two apartment buildings and the razing of the small building between them for a parking lot for the apartment tenants.

Storms hit in plains

By The Associated Press
Thunderstorms prowled the Plains today after unleashing high winds, hail and tornadoes from the Dakotas to Texas.

Numerous funnel clouds were sighted late Monday, but twisters reportedly touched down only in north-central Texas, and near Clifford, N.D.; Claremont, Minn.; Aberdeen, S.D., and Liberal, Kan.

More than 4 inches of rain deluged an area near Paducah, Tex., in two hours while up to 3 inches during the similar period caused flooding throughout the Texas south plains.

Scattered storms also hit areas of Florida and the central and Northern Rockies early today, and parts of the Pacific Northwest were damped by showers.

Skies were clear over most of the Ohio Valley, the middle and northern Atlantic Coast states, southern Texas, and the western Plains.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 87 at Needles, Calif., to 43 at Laramie, Wyo.

State releases April figures on welfare aid

According to a release from the office of Joseph T. Ferguson, state auditor, Fayette County received $10,579 in welfare assistance money during the month of April.

The total amount of money distributed throughout the state was $5,815,020.97, of which $2,238,530.05 was for the Aid for Dependent Children program. The remaining $3,576,490.92 was given to subsidize general relief and administration cost.

The largest total of aid money was sent to Cuyahoga County which received $1,179,550. The smallest amount went to Paulding County which received $3,893.

The subsidies for some surrounding counties were: Clinton, $13,829; Greene, $52,585; Highland, $13,726; Madison, $10,934; Ross, $30,907; and Pickaway, $11,847.

New Israeli cabinet holds meet

By The Associated Press
Yitzhak Rabin's new Israeli cabinet holds its inaugural meeting today after its approval by a 61-51 vote of confidence in the Israeli parliament.

The Knesset accepted the Jewish nation's first nativeborn—or sabra—premier and his 18-member cabinet after nearly eight hours of stormy debate in which conservative hard-liners charged that the new government was top-heavy with doves.

The margin was one of the closest on a confirmation vote in Israeli history. But it is likely to be closer on future votes since Rabin's coalition numbers only 61 of the 120 Knesset members, or a majority of two.

Although Rabin is known as a moderate on relations with the Arabs and his cabinet includes at least four members who considered the previous government's foreign policy too unyielding, the new premier in his statement to the Knesset outlined a policy toward Israel's Arab foes no different from that of his predecessor, Premier Golda Meir.

He said he would work for "a just, honorable" peace by stages "but not at any price" and meanwhile would keep the armed forces at maximum strength. He rejected an independent Palestinian state, negotiations with the Palestinian guerrillas and return of all the territory captured in the 1967 war.

Rabin said his first objective would be to advance the peace negotiations with Egypt. Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy in a comment on the new premier's speech called on him to renounce Israel's "old colonialist concept" and "accept the presence of a secular Palestine state within or beside her."

The prospect of Israeli-Egyptian negotiations apparently got a boost from the leaders of the Palestine guerrilla movement. They were reported to have agreed at a meeting in Cairo not to join in Arab-Israeli peace negotiations at this time and to set conditions for future participation that Israel would never accept.

Meanwhile, the economic commission of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries recommended that the posted price of Arabian light crude oil be raised from $11.65 to $12.67 a barrel. But informed sources said the OPEC was expected to reject the proposal since Abderrahman Khene, OPEC's secretary general, has said the organization wanted to keep oil prices at the present level for the third quarter of the year.

Meanwhile, it was reported that the Algerian government had defied the other Arab oil states by unilaterally lifting the embargo on oil shipments to the Netherlands and canceling the reduction on shipments to Denmark.

Commissioners reappoint Beekman to zoning board

In the only major matter under consideration by the county commissioners Monday afternoon, Delbert Beekman was reappointed to the Fayette County Board of Zoning Appeals.

Beekman, of U.S. 35-S, will serve another five-year term as a result of the appointment. His last term expired June 1.

Each member of the five-seat board

serves a five-year term. One term expires June 1 of each year.

The four other members currently serving are Wilbur Rapp, Jon Ervin, Barton Montgomery and Russell Hatfield Sr.

The commissioners also announced that they are ready to receive bids on another Sheriff's vehicle. The bids will be opened at 10 a.m. July 15.

Armstrong Solarian is a floor that keeps its promise.

It shines without wax.

Here's a floor that really does shine without waxing! Homemakers from coast to coast have discovered that Solarian keeps its high gloss—without waxing—far longer than an ordinary vinyl floor can, including their neighbor's "no-wax" floors. Spills, dirt, even black heel marks come up easily, ending the drudgery of scrubbing, waxing and stripping.

Opening lead — king of spades.

Bridge is a partnership game, and nowhere does this assert itself more forcefully than during defensive play.

Let's assume you're East and partner leads the king of spades against four hearts. You overtake the king with the ace in order to protect against the possibility that the king is a singleton. No harm can come from winning with the ace, regardless of whether South has a singleton, doubleton or tripleton spade.

The overtake turns out to be a necessary move because, when you play the queen, West shows out, discarding the three of clubs. When you then cash the jack of spades, West discards the three of diamonds and the question is what to play next.

If you are accustomed to obeying partner's signals, you have no problem. West, by discarding a low club and low diamond, has asked you not to play those suits. It would be pointless to shift to a trump, so, by elimination, you lead another spade at trick four, even though this play offers declarer a ruff and discard.

This turns out well when your partner acquires a trump trick he would not otherwise have made. The fourth spade lead would have been equally effective had West held the J-x-x of trumps instead of the Q-x. Either way, your spade continuation is sure to do the job.

It is obvious from West's negative signals in diamonds and clubs that he lacks the ace of either suit. He would surely have signaled with a high card to show an ace, if he had one. By inference, therefore, partner is demanding another spade, and there is no good reason to disobey him.

Laxatives: Yes, No?

My husband changes from laxative to laxative, depending on which commercial he listens to. Can't these be harsh and troublesome if taken for a long period of time?

Mrs. J.E.V., Tex.

Dear Mrs. V.:

The laxative habit is an easy one to fall into. It is astonishing how frequently that habit can be broken by a well-balanced diet that includes cereal, fresh and cooked fruits, vegetables and especially plenty of water.

Too many people concentrate on an urgent need for "daily regularity." There is no fixed rule that says that every person must have a bowel movement every day. Many people that are in perfect health may have a movement every two or even every three days.

If people would understand this fact they would be less prone to bounce from one laxative to another. They would wait for the intestinal tract to do its own regulating.

When a doctor prescribes a laxative, he does so for a particular reason, and he chooses one that will accomplish this purpose. Some laxatives act by increasing bulk in the intestinal tract. Others act by stimulating the inner lining. Therefore the choice of a laxative is never a haphazard one, and should not be predicated on the highly

I am embarrassed because my eyelashes have fallen out completely. I am 16. What can I do about it?

Miss R.I., Ky.

Dear Miss I.:

If there is no local infection around the eyelashes then the answer to your problem must be sought in allergic studies.

Cosmetics, eye makeup and even nail polish could be the offenders.

It is also known that people under severe emotional stress may sometimes lose their eyelashes. The stress of examinations, for example, may be the cause of your problem.

Are sulfa drugs antibiotics?

Mrs. N.N., N.C.

Dear Mrs. N.:

Sulfa drugs are different technically from antibiotics although they are both used to combat infections.

The decision of the doctor to use one or the other depends on the character of the bacteria involved.

Sulfa drugs, unlike antibiotics, are synthetic chemicals.

Charlie Pensyl

Last week we were on the subject of exposure. We suggested that you bracket, just to be sure to get one shot with the proper exposure. It's surprising how often we choose one of the "over" or "under" shots, rather than the "on the button" shot. This should indicate that bracketing is a practice we should use more often if we strive for perfection.

This fact was illustrated to me recently when Eastman Kodak Company sent one of their top photographers to town to get some color pix in and around our camera shop for a unit on our CKFN classes to be used in a nationally distributed presentation on innovative sales techniques. This photographer, a guy named Jim Dennis, certainly was a believer in the bracket technique. Man, this boy didn't just go over one and under one, Jim went over 3 or 4 and under 3 or 4. When I commented about his shooting so much film he was quick to assure me that film was much cheaper than jet fares, and to have to fly back to re-shoot an assignment could be most costly in both time and money. How true. His last assignment had been in Beirut, and he was quite sure that Kodak would be vexed to have to fly him back to Lebanon for retakes.

Film is cheap. It is indeed a mistake not to bracket when it is important to get that important picture. Or, better yet, get a Honeywell Pentax ES and forget exposure problems. Think about it.

3 accidents investigated

A rear-end collision occurred on the CCC-Highway-W and a Sabina woman lost control of her vehicle and struck a fence on U.S. 22, the Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported. The Washington C.H. Police Department investigated a car-truck accident early this morning.

Thomas H. Bryan, 19, Rt 6 and Pamela Sue Penn, 18, Wilmington.

The Bryan car had slowed on the CCC-Highway-W, one-tenth mile south-west of the Washington C. H. corporation line, for the care ahead which was making a right turn.

The Penn auto couldn't stop in time and struck the Bryan car, deputies said doing moderate damage to both vehicles. No one was injured or cited, sheriff's deputies reported.

A car driven by Zelma May Mercer, 60, Sabina, went out of control when she applied the brakes at 9:35 a.m. Monday. She applied the brakes in order to keep from hitting an unidentified vehicle making a left turn in front of her, as she traveled east on U.S. 22, near the Staunton Jasper Road intersection.

An accident at the intersection of Columbus Avenue and Fayette Center occurred at 8:32 a.m. today between a truck driven by Burrell M. Workman, 52, Miami Trace Road and a car driven by Phyllis Jean Pratter, 20, Jeffersonville.

City Police investigating the mishap reported moderate damage incurred by the Pratter auto and slight damage to the Workman truck.

Porno defendants late for jury trial

Confusion abounded in The Fayette County Courthouse Monday when approximately 40 prospective jurors arrived for a trial in Common Pleas Court, but one of two defendants did not.

Two men, Robert Lemons, of Greenfield, and Michael Marmura, of Reynoldsburg, were scheduled to face the jury on charges of the sale and possession for the sale of pornography. However, Marmura didn't show up for the 9 a.m. trial until after 12 noon.

By that time Common Pleas Judge Evelyn W. Coffman has declared his $1,500 bond forfeited. When he did arrive showing the cause for tardiness was "beyond his control," the judge reinstated the bond.

The reason Marmura didn't arrive on time was the same reason Lemons nearly didn't make the scene; he hadn't been notified of the court date.

The confusion began when Lemons decided not to be represented by the same Columbus attorney representing Marmura. Some months ago, he solicited John C. Bryan, of Washington C.H., to represent him. However, the notification of trial date was sent to his former attorney, Marmura's counsel, in Columbus.

Bryan heard of the trial date purely by accident. He then notified Lemons, and both of them appeared early Monday morning.

For some unknown reason, Marmura's attorney never notified his client of the trial date. At the time the trial was scheduled to begin in Common Pleas Court, he was involved in court in Columbus.

After being contacted by the Fayette County court, he notified his client and arrived in Washington C.H. shortly before noon. Marmura appeared a short time later. By the time he had arrived, however the prospective jurors had long since been excused.

Why the defendants themselves had not been notified of the trial date by the court is not known.

The trial has now been rescheduled for 9 a.m. June 21.

Both men had been arrested by Sheriff's deputies shortly after the February term of the Fayette County grand jury had returned secret indictments against them. The indictments charge both men with misdemeanors.

It is believed that counsel for both defendants will argue that the material in question was solely for the private use of the defendants, and not for sale.

Believe walleye population rise likely in lake

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio wildlife officials say the walleye population of Lake Erie, once dangerously low, could be on the upswing.

But whether the fish contain less mercury than in 1970, when the U.S. Food and Drug Administration ordered a ban in fishing, isn't really known, officials said Monday.

"The walleye population is what we might call static, or slightly improving," said Russell School, supervisor of Lake Erie fisheries.

The Ohio Division of Wildlife in 1972 ordered a five-year moratorium on walleye fishing in the lake, primarily to build up a depleted stock.

4 persons dead in domestic tiff

LANCASTER, Ohio (AP) — A domestic quarrel in Lancaster Monday night claimed the lives of four people, police said today.

The victims were identified as Leslie Hunt, 53, his estranged wife, Delores, and Mr. and Mrs. James Iser.

Lancaster police said Hunt was arguing with his wife over support payments for their children. He apparently pulled a gun, shot his wife and the couple visiting her, then turned the gun on himself, police said.

Firm schedules interviews, but won't release its name

A plastics manufacturing firm is currently considering expansion into the Washington C.H. area and will be holding interviews at the Washington Inn Friday.

The firm, which is not releasing its name, will use the results of the interviews to determine in part whether Washington C.H. would be a suitable location. The interviews will indicate whether this area can supply labor suitable to its needs.

When the company will make a final decision, or when the name of the firm will be released, are not immediately known.

Personnel for several types of positions will be interviewed. They include skilled and unskilled laborers and manufacturing supervisors.

The interviews will be held from 2 until 6 p.m. Friday. Anyone who is interested must apply in person.

According to a Dayton representative for the firm, the company is not Raven Industries, a plastics firm which has already selected Washington C.H. as the location for a new plant.

Raven, based in South Dakota, is currently seeking a contractor for its plant here. When it is completed, the company will employ 14 local workers initially. The target date for starting operations is early November.

Money Does Matter . . .

By David G. Looker SOME SIMPLE SUGGESTIONS FOR THE USE OF CHECKS . . .

1. Keep cancelled (and blank) checks safe. They are your receipts for payments made — and, a forger-finder could use them to copy your signature.
2. Stop payment on very old or lost checks.
3. Process checks you receive immediately, without delay.
4. Refuse to accept a check more than 6-months old unless you first consult with the Bank on which it is issued.
5. As soon as you receive a check, endorse it, "For deposit only" (so that if you lose it a finder cannot use it. Checks can be lost in the mail, while on the way to the Bank.)

A "Certified" check is your personal check, one which your Bank promises to set aside money, out of your account, to pay when it is properly endorsed. It must not be destroyed. If not used it must be returned to the issuing Bank for credit to your account.

A "Cashier's" Check is a Bank's own check ordering payment out of the Bank's own funds. Properly endorsed, it may be cashed or deposited in any Bank, cash or out of your account, and the Bank writes the check for your use. Somewhat like a "Money Order."

DISASTER PREPAREDNESS—as explained by Dick Burrows, executive director of the Miami Valley Disaster Services Authority. Burrows lectured Monday evening at the Washington C.H. Fire Department to a crowd of 115 interested citizens and explained the steps Washington C.H. should take to help prepare it for a possible catastrophe.

City urged to develop disaster program

BY MARK THELLMANN

"My job is to help people," avowed Dick Burrows, executive director of the Miami Valley Disaster Services Authority, at the conclusion of his talk at the Washington C.H. Fire Department Monday evening—and that's exactly what he had done.

Burrows discussed several disaster he has been exposed to during his 15 years of serving the organization, but the heaviest emphasis was placed on what happened in Xenia April 3, when a tornado destroyed most of the city.

"At 4:06 p.m., the city of Xenia was alerted to the presence of a tornado 25 miles northeast of Cincinnati, traveling at a speed of 50 miles per hour straight toward it," Burrows explained.

He went on to say the Xenia Police Department, and the radio and television media did all they could on the short notice to warn the people of the impending danger due to befall their city.

"This communication gave many people time to prepare and thus saved many lives who otherwise would have perished, but as we found out after the tragedy, it wasn't enough. Every city, every town must have a disaster preparedness plan. Xenia did its best, but really didn't have one," Burrows said.

Burrows narrated a color film of the Xenia destruction, taken the day after the disaster, to emphasize his point. Afterwards, he outlined a basic plan which every community could adopt, which would provide a crucial edge on any catastrophe.

A total of 115 persons, including city council members, the Washington C.H. Fire and Police Departments, the Fayette Sheriff's Department, the state Highway Patrol, county commissioners, area civil defense unit representatives and interested citizens, listened attentively to what Burrows had to say.

The key to Burrows' plan was "total involvement." Everyone would be involved, from the city planners to the Girl Scouts and all citizens.

Burrows added that in the past a subject like disaster preparedness came under the jurisdiction of civil defense, but civil defense no longer exists. The agency is now called, the "Defense Civil Preparedness Agency," and as much as 50 per cent of the cost incurred by a community in having a disaster preparedness plan can be federally funded through the new agency.

Xenia's biggest problem, according to Burrows, was lack of organization.

"Many organizations and people came to help in Xenia, but here was one to tell them what to do or where to go. Chaos prevailed and this added to the general confusion and hysteria. It was a mess!" Burrows exclaimed.

"After you develop your disaster preparedness plan, the public must be made aware of it and how it functions," Burrows continued, "and it must be practiced every eight months or so in order to work out the bugs and keep it polished."

Washington C. H. Fire Chief M. M. (Joe) Denen commented after Burrows finished his talk that Washington C.H. had a lot to do and a long way to go, and City Manager Dan Wolford summed it all up by stating, "It's evident what must be done. Washington C.H. must develop its disaster preparedness plan and it must be done soon."

The rarest dog in the world is the lowchen or lion dog, of which only 52 were reported in October 1971. The breed was a famous lapdog of the nobility of southern Europe during the Renaissance period.
